ALIENISTS DIFFER IN TESTIMONY ON HICKMAN

Will Rogers Has Feet Tickled and Is Crazy About It

(Special To The News)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 6.—Well; the alienists in the murder trial again took the comedy honors yesterday.

One testified that Hickman was insane, because when he tickled the bottom of his foot his big toe turned up instead of down, so take off your shoes and have somebody tickle you and see which way your toes go, north or south.

I tried it and mine didn't pay any attention to it, so I guess I am a cross between crazy and sane.

Say, did you read what Calvin told the newspapers, said while you are bragging on nations give this one a boost.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

New Castle has seen few nicer winter days than that enjoyed on Sunday. It looked like a real spring day, cloudless, and just cold enough to be interesting. Hundreds took advantage of the weather conditions to enjoy an auto tour during the afternoon.

Many spectators lined the banks of the Neshannock creek Sunday morning as the ice gorged in the creek north from the Washington street bridge to a point near Rural avenue. The fact that the ice was only a few inches thick, prevented a gorge that would have been more serious.

Warning signs along the improved highways maintained by the state department are now being painted yellow and black.

Another example of quick justice in Lawrence county is to be noted in the sentencing of Normal J. Wright in court Saturday. He is the man who was captured about two weeks ago in the Seventh ward after a chase by citizens.

Broken weather of the past week or more has allowed outside progress to be made on construction of the new Jameson Memorial hospital. Work of erecting the exterior walls is now under way at the building.

Mercer county evidently had a much heavier snow storm than Lawrence county, during the past two weeks. Remains of drifts of considerable magnitude are still to be noted along the roads in the adjoining county.

Response to the effort of county medical director and those associated in the work in the effort to eliminate diphtheria by use of the toxin anti-toxin treatment for school children is gratifying. It is to be hoped that the day will come when this disease will be entirely blotted out in the schools of Lawrence county, and elsewhere.

Arguments about Lindy's birthday anniversary seem to have been settled. His birthday anniversary was celebrated on Saturday, which was February 4.

One of the wonders of the modern telephone exchange was demonstrated to Pa Newc the other day when Jack Dunfee, city manager of the Bell company took us through the plant on a tour of inspection. When we reached the exchange, we commented upon the lack of noise. It seemed that one girl could not even hear the other. Well, said Mr. Dunfee, it is a way that the girls get; they can throw their voices into the phone, and no one on the outside can hear them.

Although Pa Newc hates to dig up an old subject, yet he cannot help commenting on the perverseness of groundhogs in general. For here we are, in February, and we have spring weather with us. But, the sages and weather prophets say, we shall pay through the nose when March comes around. And paying through the nose is no idle statement.

Some of the Hard Hatters are in for a tough time of it, and especially those who had the temerity to wear the iron mike Saturday evening,

Fishermen Face Death; Carried Out Into Lake On Big Field Of Ice

(International News Service)

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Captain Paul H. Forner, coast commander, today appealed to the New York National Guard and Lieut. Edwin M. Ronne, manager of the Buffalo airport, to supply airplanes to search for the ten or more fishermen facing death on Lake Erie on a gigantic field of ice which broke away from the off-shore pack seven miles southwest of Windmill Point, Ont., Sunday afternoon. At daybreak the coast guard was patrolling both the Canadian and American shores. The weather was very cold.

The plight of the fishermen was brought to the attention of the coast guard here when Captain Forner received telephone calls from several residents along the Canadian shore saying they had seen the men fishing and saw a field of ice break away from shore ice. All agreed that at least ten men were marooned and carried away.

The coast guard estimates that the men were fishing about three miles off shore when the break came, and that the southwest wind had carried the field out into the lake about six miles. Later the wind shifted to the north and late last night the ice field was being carried south across the lake ten miles or more from the Canadian shore. The identity of the men is unknown. All are believed to be from Long Point, Ont.

The fishermen carried wood to kindle a fire but only enough to last until this morning.

Councilman Ora Loomis, at Crystal Beach watching the fishermen through field glasses, saw the ice suddenly break away. The men were fishing in pairs, and singly, he said. The ice is six inches thick.

Can't Reach Men

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 6.—The coast guard vessel which put out early today in an effort to rescue ten men trapped on an ice floe which broke loose and floated out into Lake Erie before the men could regain the mainland, returned to this port after fruitless efforts to approach the frozen island of ice. The crew reported that they could not get within seven miles of the floe, due to ice jams.

Haiti Next Stop For Lindbergh

Famous Flying Colonel Ready For Flight To Port Au Prince, Haiti

HAVANA, CUBA, IS ULTIMATE GOAL

(International News Service)

SANTO DOMINGO, Feb. 6.—Bound on his last hop before his final flight to Havana, his ultimate goal in his swing through Central America, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will take off today for Port Au Prince, Haiti.

There he will remain two days and then fly to Havana where he will be a spectator at the Sixth Pan American Conference now in session and where he will be given one of the greatest receptions of his whole tour.

One of the highlights of Col. Lindbergh's visit here was a pilgrimage to the tomb of Christopher Columbus, who four hundred years ago discovered a new continent. The young flyer has been compared with Columbus by the residents of this section of the new world which first greeted Columbus' eyes as his ship sailed in from the newly crossed Atlantic.

Col. Lindbergh attended the usual round of official receptions and sightseeing tours yesterday and ended a busy day with a banquet given by the municipality of Santo Domingo and a grand ball in his honor at the National Palace as guest of President Horacio Vasquez.

SANTO DOMINGO, Feb. 6—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh resumed his aerial tour of the West Indies at 10:45 o'clock this morning when he hopped off from the local landing field for Port Au Prince, Hayti, amid the cheers of a crowd of several thousand persons who had gathered to witness the start.

The aerial distance to Port Au Prince is about 175 miles.

Hartford Police Also Want Cowan

A telephone message received this morning by Sergeant of Police Frank M. Jones from the police authorities of Hartford, Conn., was to the effect that Richard Cowan, alias G. Anderson, arrested here by the police after the robbery committed at the Hoyt homes, was wanted there on a similar charge of burglary and larceny. This contradicts the statement of Cowan, when up for sentence Saturday, when he was given eight years in the penitentiary, that he was not wanted in any other place.

Dual Probe Into 1926 Senatorial Election Opened

Reed Committee And Waterman Subcommittee Starts Investigation Today

BALLOT BOXES, ETC., WILL BE EXAMINED

Seek Evidence Of Fraud Charges Brought Against William S. Vare

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6—A dual senatorial investigation into the returns from Pennsylvania's 1926 senatorial election was begun today by the Reed slush fund committee and the Waterman elections sub-committee.

Representatives of the Reed committee began an examination of ballot boxes, poll lists, registration sheets and other election paraphernalia seized in Philadelphia county a year ago at the same time, the Waterman subcommittee started a recount of the ballots seized in Allegheny county. Each committee had a representative watching the other committee's work.

Seek Evidence

The Reed committee sought evidence to support charges of fraud brought against Senator-elect William S. Vare (R) by his Democratic opponent William B. Wilson. The Waterman committee was concerned chiefly with determining who legally won the election and had sole charge of the counting of ballots.

The Reed committee meanwhile was preparing to plead before the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari to get a review of decisions in the Pennsylvania Federal courts that it had no authority to seize ballots last summer during the recess of congress.

The district court of Philadelphia refused to order some ballots turned over to the committee on the ground it could not endorse the committee's power to act during a recess. This decision was upheld in the circuit court of appeals.

"It is our purpose," explained Senator LaFollette (R) of Wis. member of the committee, "to get a decision from the Supreme Court fixing the status of a special committee of the senate during a congressional recess. It has no application to the Wilson-Vare case, as we already have obtained the ballots. We simply want a definite ruling from the Supreme Court for use in the future."

Conviction Of Miller Upheld

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Conviction of Col. Thomas W. Miller, of Wilmington, Del., former alien property custodian of defrauding the United States of its rights and privileges by his failure to give it his impartial and disinterested services was today unanimously affimed by the United States Circuit court of appeals.

Unless Col. Miller secures a writ of certiorari, from the United States Supreme court or favorable action by President Coolidge on a parole from Federal Judge Knox, who sentenced him, he will have to serve the eighteen months prison sentence imposed after his conviction, a fine of $5,000 was also part of the sentence.

Slater Is Probing Mystery Murders At Washington, Pa.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 6. — Though the murders of Thelma Young, 27, and Isreal Slostky have been abandoned by many for want of clues, the investigation of the two slayings, which occurred a week apart has not been given up altogether.

It was learned that Ora E. Slater, the Cincinnati sleuth who helped solve the Mellett murder in Canton, O., is here working on the cases. Miss Young is believed to be the victim of a fiend, while young Slotsky was killed a moment after he left his sweetheart's home.

RECALLS LINCOLN AS NEIGHBOR

Mrs. Olivia Whiteman, of Vandalia, Ill., is believed to be the only surviving neighbor of Abraham Lincoln, smiles as she recalls how the lanky young lawyer, when he lived next door to her, in Springfield, Ill., used to come to her house in search of his son, "Monkey Tad." Discovering the lad under the bed Lincoln would get down on his knees and drag the youngster from his hiding place. Above, Mrs. Olivia Whiteman as a young girl and today. ## Teapot Dome Case Continues Today

Hope To Establish Where Remainder Of Huge "Slush Fund" Found Its Way

STEWART AT LIBERTY UNDER HABEAS CORPUS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Having located $1,033,000 of the mysterious Continental Trading Company's Liberty bonds, the new Teapot Dome inquiry was directed today toward finding the remainder of its alleged $3,080,000 "slush fund".

With rumors current that some of this money found its way into the coffers of major political parties, the Senate public lands committee plunged ahead along a trail that appeared getting warmer. The investigators followed a definite "lead" given them by W. S. Fitzpatrick, aged chairman of the board of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, who testified that the officials of his company had "suspicions" about the Continental deal.

Fitzpatrick revealed that James E. O'Neil, former head of Prairie, had received $800,000 of the Continental's profits in Liberty bonds, which were turned into the company's treasury when O'Neil "thought he was going to die". Previously the committee traced $233,000 of the bonds from the hands of Harry F. Sinclair into the bank account of Former Secretary of the Interior Albert Fall.

Stewart at Liberty

Robert W. Stewart, belligerent chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, meanwhile was at liberty today under a $1,000 bond for a hearing tomorrow on a writ of habeas corpus which freed him from arrest on a warrant issued by the Senate.

Stewart twice defied the investigating committee when questioned about the Continental bonds. If Justice Ailey, of the district supreme court orders him back into the Senate's custody he will be "tried" at the bar of the Senate on charges of con-

Fire Damages Wampum Block

Repman Building Is Scene Of Fire On Sunday Afternoon

BELIEVE LOSS IS FULLY COVERED

(Special To The News)

WAMPUM, Pa., Feb. 6.—Two story brick business and apartment building of C. L. Repman on Main street was damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars Sunday afternoon by fire, cause of which is not definitely determined. The loss is covered by insurance. The excellent work of the volunteer firemen of this place prevented a more disastrous fire.

The first floor is occupied by the confectionery and stationery business, also the piano and radio business of Mr. Repman. The two apartments on the second floor are occupied by C. L. Repman and family and Mr. and Mrs. George Conner.

About 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Repman left for Beaver Falls. Mr. and Mrs. Conner were having a late dinner about 3:30 o'clock when Mrs. Conner noticed the odor of burning wood and then smoke.

She and her husband rushed to the Repman apartment, thinking the Repman family might be resting. Unable to arouse anybody in the apartment, they spread the alarm and the volunteer firemen and others were soon on the job.

It was soon discovered that the fire was in the rear part of the building and between part of the storeroom occupied by the confectionery and stationery store and the Repman apartment above.

The kitchen door of the Repman apartment was broken in and it was found that the blaze was apparently between the floor of the apartment and the ceiling of the store and also in the walls of the building.

But cutting holes in the floor and walls the fire was finally drowned out, but not until it had spread under the floor of the kitchen and into the bathroom of the Conner apartment.

Much of the damage was done by

Three Men Killed; Train Hits Auto

(International News Service)

The victims were Nathan Krause, 45, of Indiana Harbor; his son Harold Krause and Arthur Given, Purdue University students.

News To Present Street Name Puzzle; With Cash Prizes

Twelve Thousand School Children Of City To Be Eligible To Compete

PUZZLE IS IDEA OF NEW CASTLE MAN

Watch The News This Week For Further Announcement Of Contest

How familiar are the school children of New Castle with the streets of their own city?

How many of them can name 200 streets and avenues in New Castle if the names are hidden in a puzzle?

These are two questions which the New Castle News would like to know and which it will endeavor to find out within the next 10 days.

A well-known citizen of New Castle has compiled a list of 200 streets and avenues of this city whose names are hidden in the name of something else. For instance, the name of the "Father of his Country" would be Washington street. The "Savior of the Union" would be Lincoln avenue.

Better Than Cross-Word Puzzle

These two are just examples of the kind of questions contained in this list of 200, and it is far more interesting than a cross-word puzzle because every answer is a street or avenue in New Castle.

There is no catch or trick to the contest. The 200 questions will be published in the New Castle News in a few days, and the winners will be given each prizes by The News. It is not an advertising scheme for some breakfast food or spark plug, just a brain exerciser which will take the knowledge of every student in New Castle.

The contest will be open to every boy and girl in school in the city of New Castle, either elementary, junior or senior high schools, in the public and parochial schools here. In other words, there will be nearly 12,000 possible contestants.

The questions will be published some day this week, and after they are published the contestants will be allowed six or seven days to get the answers. The answers are to be mailed to Bart Richards, Contest Editor, New Castle News, and to be considered they must be mailed, not brought to the office.

All of Them Stamped

As the answers are received they will be marked with the date and time of day they are received. When the contest closes the judges, who will be representative men and women of New Castle, will be given correct list of answers and this list is now sealed and locked in the safe of the New Castle News. Only one man knows the correct answers and he is the composer of the list of questions. His name will be made known when the winners are announced.

Be on the lookout for the list of questions, boys and girls. The contest should be one of the best ever staged in New Castle and the competition should be keen.

The list will be published this week, probably before Friday, and just as soon as it is published you can start on it. Some of the answers will stump you, perhaps, some of them may require a little digging, but after you have finished them you will know more about the streets and avenues of your city than you ever knew before.

Watch for the list of questions. And remember that the prizes will be in cash.

Boston Architect Commits Suicide

(International News Service)

WINCHESTER Mass., Feb. 6. — Henry M. Haven, Boston architect, who was one of those technically indicted in connection with the collapse of the Pickwick Night Club building, and the loss of 55 lives in 1925, took his life by inhaling illuminating gas at his home here today, according to police.

Last week Haven, who was 56, was found unconscious from carbon monoxide gas poisoning in his garage. His automobile motor was running. A policeman saved Haven's life.

The body today was discovered by his wife in the laundry.

Haven drew the plans for the new building that was to be erected adjoining the Pickwick Club. It was charged that the excavation for the new building undermined the old.

Deny Report That Mining Camps Are Very Unsanitary

General Report Of Widespread Illness And Unsanitary Conditions Denied

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Feb. 6.—Charges that widespread illness and general unsanitary conditions were prevalent in the Western Pennsylvania bituminous fields were flatly denied by the governor's office today in making public a detailed report covering conditions there from Miss Alice M. O'Halloran, chief of the Bureau of Nurses.

The report as made public gave a detailed account of inspections made during January. In each mining town and eviction camp detailed figures were given on the number of families living there and also the number of children of school and preschool age.

In Allegheny and Westmoreland counties the report covered Bruceton, Lick Run, Horning, Russelton, Coverdale, Renton, Kinlock, Newfield and a number of other towns. No illness was reported from any of the camps and sanitary conditions were reported generally as "good" or "fair." In a number of places barracks for non-union miners were reported under construction.

The report also covered Fayette, Indiana, Huntingdon and Cambria counties.

The Fayette report said "conditions good, no recent evictions."

In the Huntingdon county strikers' camp only men were reported living in the barracks and there was no general sickness, the report said.

The majority of the striking miners in Indiana county have gone back to work, the report asserted.

"Conditions very good and nothing directly due to strike," was the report summary for Cambria county.

Hickman Trial Is Developing Into Alienists' Fight

State Prepares To Send Alienists To Stand Today To Combat Defense Move

HICKMAN BRANDED IN INSANITY TEST

Possibility Exists That Defense Will Show Two "Trump Cards" Later On

By ARTHUR L. MAREK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Prosecution alienists today sought to erase from the minds of the jury in the Marion Parker kidnaping and murder trial a scarlet letter "H" which, the defense contends, brands William Edward Hickman as a beardless mad man.

Dr. Paul E. Bowers, who drew with a door key the crimson letter on Hickman's snow-white chest and back as an asserted mark of insanity, was prepared today to explain it by saying that red lines do not show the presence of dermatographia. Were Hickman truly dermatographic, Dr. Bowers was ready to testify, the key strokes would have raised a welt and not the "diffused erythema" which the jurors beheld last Saturday when Hickman stood half naked before them.

The defense alienists contend that dermatographia is a symptom of dementia praecox "on account of the frequency of endocrine disturbances in this disease". The words in quotation are from the definition of Dr. A. L. Skoog, internationally known neurologist, who testified that Hickman has shown marked signs of insanity.

Alienists employed by the state admit that dermatographia sometimes is present in dementia, but, they assert, so it is in indigestion and a thousand and one other ailments.

"One nut does not make a machine. Neither does a top and a set of tires make an automobile," Dr. Bowers told the jurors in refutation of the defense argument that the presence of dermatographia indicates dementia.

State Opens Case

Dr. Bowers, who was on the stand when the sanity hearing adjourned Saturday after Hickman had been stripped to the waist and the courtroom had been turned into a clinic, was to be recalled to the witness box when the trial is resumed today.

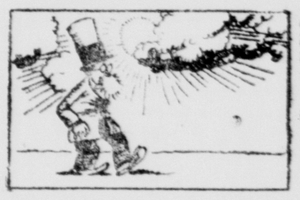

He was to be followed by an array of state's alienists prepared to combat Hickman's defense that he is not guilty of the Marion Parker kidnaping and murder by reason of insanity.

Dr. Victor Parkin, Dr. Herman Schoor, Dr. Frank M. Mikels, Dr. Thomas Ordbison and Dr. Edward Huntington Williams all waited to testify that Hickman was sane and knew the difference between right and wrong when he kidnaped and murdered the 12-year-old schoolgirl.

The prosecution disclosed its plans when District Attorney Asa Keyes indicated that the state had decided to reverse the original order of its witnesses and put its alienists on the stand before calling its other witnesses.

The possibility that the defense would bring two "trump cards" was indicated when Jerome Walsh, chief defense counsel, admitted that he has under consideration the calling of a pair of nationally known psychiatrists to bolster up the insanity defense.

Government Makes Thousandth Test At Bruceton Mine

Seek To Determine Causes Of Blasts In Soft Coal Mines

Experiments Over Period Of Seventeen Years Conducted By Mine Bureau

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—For the thousandth time, the U. S. bureau of mines today exploded coal dust in its experimental mine at Bruceton, near here, before a group of mine inspectors, mining officials and engineers.

Explosion test No. 1,000, the bureau announced, signified a great forward step in the prevention of loss of life from mine explosions in the bituminous coal fields.

The Bruceton mine is the only coal mine in the world, owned and operated by a governmental agency for the sole purpose of conducting mine safety tests. To the tests made there has been attributed the reduction in the number of lives lost from more than 600 lives in two explosions in 1907 to 475 in 20 major explosions during the two-year period from Jan. 1, 1926, to Jan. 1, 1928.

The most significant development from the 999 previous tests, has been the discovery that rock dust acts as a preventative, or at least a restrictive force in stopping the coal dust explosions, the bureau stated.

The first explosion was made in the test mine on October 24, 1911. This test proved to the mine bureau that coal dust was explosive when ignited and that fire damp need not be present to cause the dust to explode.

Satisfied the fire damp was unnecessary to cause an explosion, the mine bureau set out to discover a preventative. A long time was spent in devising a means. Much equipment was destroyed by the extreme violence of the detonations.

To Sir William E. Garforth, British mine engineer, the mine bureau gives the credit for the adoption of the rock dusting method. It was Garforth that advocating the spreading of a non-combustible dust through the mine was a means of preventing or limiting the explosion.

The bureau determined to use the rock dust in its experimental mine. It proved to be more effective than any other agency.

But, the bureau states, the work is not completed. More explosions will be caused in the experimental mine, until all information of real value concerning coal mining has been gleaned from this source.

A., at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary Club, held at noon in the crystall ballroom of The Castleton. The Hon. C. A. Woodum, representative from Virginia, and C. C. Cappell, concert manager of the band, were also presented to the Rotarians.

"The United States Army Band was organized in 1922 at the special request of General Pershing, who thought that the U. S. army also needed a representative musical organization, like that of so many European countries. The personnel of the band was drawn from the recruiting depots which were just being disbanded at the time and also from schools of music and conservatories. With them they have many artists.

"Our purpose in this tour is to create good will by individual contact with as many of the citizens as we can. And my boys will demonstrate their instruments to anyone who is interested.

The Hon. Woodrum next made a few remarks concerning the hospitality which was shown to the band by the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations. He then sang "My Task", accompanied by Mr. Cappell. Finally he quoted from the works of Paul Lawrence Dunbar, America's premier Negro poet.

Before the general sessions John L. Slack, manager of The Castleton, and H. S. Bailey of the Remington-Rand Business Service were initiated into the club by H. B. Richards.

CONGRESSMAN AND ARMY BAND GET RECEPTION

Weingartner acted as chairman of the program and after bidding the men welcome, called upon Mayor William H. Gillespie for an address.

The mayor's address was a good start for a pleasant day. He welcomed the men on behalf of the citizens of New Castle, congratulated them upon their splendid band and said that New Castle was delighted to have them here.

His address was responded to by Congressman C. A. Woodrum of Virginia, who is accompanying the band as a vocal soloist. He spoke for the band when he said that already they were delighted with the reception accorded them and promised that the people of New Castle would not be disappointed in the concert. Captain W. J. Stannard also spoke briefly.

The United States Army Band is considered to be the finest military band in Washington, D. C. Organized in 1922 by General Pershing it is not attached to any regiment or battalion but is stationed at the War College in Washington, D. C., and is the musical representative of the entire army.

Tour Authorized

Until recently the band was not permitted to go outside of Washington. Gradually the radio concerts of the band spread its fame and finally the War Department authorized a concert tour which would include representative cities. New Castle was able to get one of the dates and this evening in the Scottish Rite Cathedral auditorium New Castle music lovers will be privileged to hear a service band that is spreading the gospel of better band music throughout the country. Congressman Woodrum will also sing.

Captain Stannard will also lead the Senior High School band today. Hearing high school bands sometimes becomes boresome to professional musicians but when he heard the local youngsters playing this morning at the Pennsylvania Station Captain Stannard evinced a lot of interest and asked many questions concerning the organization.

The concerts today and this evening are under the auspices of the New Castle Ball club. This organization of men has been responsible for other high class productions being brought to New Castle and their presentation of the United States Army Band is to their credit. The program for the evening follows.

Overture from Rienza, Wagner.
Oriental Fantasy, "In a Chinese Temple Garden," Ketelbey.
Trumpet solo, "Grand Russian Fantasia," Jules Levy.

Fights for Dogs

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer, of Lynn, Mass., is a lover of dogs. So much so that he defied the entire state of Massachusetts when authorities passed an edict ordering the muzzling of all canines for a period of 90 days. Bauer warned policemen in the city not to heed the state edict and ordered them to arrest any state agent who entered Lynn with intent to shoot unmuzzled dogs.

Save Kisses Until Warm Weather Comes

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Feb. 6.—Kisses of two-reel length should be postponed until warmer weather arrives, because kissing is more dangerous in winter than in summer, says Dr. Thomas McElroy, chief of the medical clinic of the Marland Refining company.

The joy-seeking youth, says Doctor McElroy, cannot be expected to survive an entire winter without a single kiss, but he warns that cold-weather kissing should be confined to a light peck on the lips.

Doctor McElroy explains his advice—and also his warning—by pointing to the fact that the common cold is more common in winter than in summer. The germs of colds leave the body through the mouth and nose, the doctor declares, and they enter thru the same routes. That's where the danger of the old-fashioned kiss comes in. He offers no advice about "necking", however.

Allegheny River Choaked With Ice

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—The Kiskiminetas river ice pack, broken by mild weather and Saturday night's downpour which average nearly an inch in the Kiski Valley, began flowing past Pittsburgh early today and will continue until late this afternoon, the weather bureau announced. The Allegheny was three fourths covered.

The ice jam in the Allegheny beginning at a point about two miles above the mouth of the Kiskiminetas and extending northward for 25 miles is still holding in the lower river.

A break occurred in the gorge of the upper river yesterday. Franklin and Parkers Landing reported ice flowing for five hours yesterday, only to gorge again below Parkers Landing.

A light rain predicted for tonight with rising temperature tomorrow may have further effect on the Allegheny river ice although a general movement of the gorge is not anticipated.

WEALTH IN WASTE

GENERAL LORD, director of the budget, is jubilant when some department or bureau in Washington saves a few thousands of dollars by such scrutinizing economy as leaving the decorative blue stripe out of the canvas used for mail bags, or by using second-hand paper clips. The catchpenny economists of the budget bureau have saved the taxpayers some thousands of dollars, sometimes resorting to ingenious devices, but they can still learn something in this direction from big business.

When the mah jong fad took the country by storm the packing companies made a few extra millions profit by sending the shin bones of butchered cattle to China to be converted into mah jong "tiles." The great fortunes in the packing industry were built upon by-products, not from chops and steaks.

It has been said of one of the packing concerns that it used everything from the pig but the squeal. The slogan applies equally well to the cow. A Chicago concern that kills about 2,000,000 cattle each year has each gall bladder searched for gall stones. They are used as charms in the Orient and are ground for a medicinal preparation in this country.

In his economy campaign President Coolidge should have handed out a few dollars-a-year jobs to the by-product inventors for the meat packers. The most cautious would risk a large wager they would find ways and means of cutting down government expenses. They, at least, would not begin their work by seeking new jobs to be filled. Much public money would be saved if politicians and officeholders were not concerned with saving jobs for other politicians.

RECEDING BIRTH RATE

RECORDS over a long period of time show that the birth rate of the United States has been falling rapidly while the marriage rate has been slowly rising. Since 1887 the marriage rate has increased from 8.7 per thousand of population to 10.2 at the present. The birth rate dropped from 40 per thousand of population in 1880 to 21 in 1927.

The marriage rate here is higher than any European country for a number of reasons but chiefly because of the more favorable economic conditions. But, high as these living standards are, economic conditions here are unfavorable for large families among certain classes of Americans.

The birth rate over the country as a whole would be still lower if it were not for the large foreign population and the large numbers of illiterate Americans among whom the birth rate runs higher than the average for all classes. Were it not for these elements, the national birth rate unquestionably would be the lowest in the world.

This news comes as a surprise to the public which, conscious of the great territorial extent and the prosperity of the country, has assumed that the population has continued to keep pace with other phases of national development.

One compensating factor is a death rate that has been receding faster than the birth rate. There is no immediate danger of race suicide, and this country is in a position different from such nations as France where the death rate is still disproportionately high.

NO TARIFF REVISION

ANY attempt to force tariff revision during the present session of congress is certain to be futile as well as inexpedient.

There is talk in the senate of a combination of Democrats and radicals to make such legislation a rider to the revenue bill. This ignores the fact that only the house can originate financial bills.

Representative Tilson, the Republican floor leader, is unalterably against any readjustment. He says that it "would in all human probability mean the beginning of a task that could not be completed before the presidential election."

Views on the nature of revision differ so widely that debate would be endless.

The disturbance to business would be great. The advocates of action know this perfectly, and it is impossible to avoid the suspicion that they are influenced by political motives only.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 5:24. Sun rises tomorrow 7:02.

We cannot expect so much of a phase of civilization that is set on "having a good time."

We have never seen the pictures of a couple celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary that did not look quiet, peaceful and loving. It has to be to be married that long.

After reading the awful details and testimony of those who are related to murderers and hearing them tell of the nuts in the family we have about come to the conclusion that something should be done to keep the lunies from getting married—or something. It might be humiliating and painful but should be done.

Some one said that Americans waste so much time doing inconsequental things. That's what we think every day, but nobody will do them for us.

It seems to us that if there is anything in the fortune telling stuff and looking into the future the artists who practice that should be turned loose and be asked to find the many young girls that turn up missing every day. In New York alone last week 31 young girls were listed as missing. And in many of the cases no questions are asked—or answered.

They say—everybody says—that automobiles are one of the greatest causes for the increase of crime—the criminals can so easily escape. No way out then, but to go back to the beginning and raise boys on the Bible and McGuffey's reader who won't commit crime.

The father of Hickman the Los Angeles child murderer, swore on the witness stand while trying to prove his wife crazy, that he often woke up in the night and found his wife standing over him with a butcher knife or an ax. Oh, wham de doodle wham!

As Chicago couldn't get either of the two political conventions mightn't she consider a world's fair.

A bill before congress would prohibit any one sending merchandise through the mails unless the same was ordered and solicited. If that law goes into effect a lot of cheap neckties will go out of circulation.

Case of the man who has practically been declared sane by day and insane by night is not unusual. The nights get a lot of us.

We have noticed that very few people ever want to reduce the price of their own particular commodity. However they think others should reduce the price of theirs. And so there you are, prices remain high.

An ominous silence is the best storm signal a man can have when he comes home at night.

We noticed where a seat in the New York stock exchange sold for ten thousand dollars less than the previous one had sold at. This makes the seats at the reasonable figure of $190,000 cash, no discount.

In some respects we cannot help sympathizing with the 12-year-old kid who didn't care much about geography for the reason that when he wanted to go somewhere he could "always ask a policeman."

There will always be a lot of competition among the commodities which have nothing to recommend them except price. Think that over carefully.

A man was arrested in Flushing, N. Y. by two detectives while he was kneeling beside the coffin of his aunt praying. This shows that even some religiously inclined are murderers for this was the crime for which he was arrested when he arose from his knees.

There is a law in Russia which provides for putting the superintendent of a railroad into jail when the trains are late. It is said the railroads are usually on time there. In this country we never do anything about late trains except get short answers from the railroad chaps and we stand around and wait until the trains come in—and incidentally cuss more or less. Some foreign countries have some good laws and customs.

Electric lights have made is safer for the mothers to enjoy night life.

One thing that has always been a matter of surprise to us is the rapidity with which a substantial intellect may be dethroned after the murder has been committed.

Traffic congestion on the street doesn't impress anybody who has lived in a boarding house with only one bath room.

Woman may have as much sense of humor as a man but she gets more fun out of a good cry.

The well dressed man we are told must have five overcoats. Some birds would get arrested in a restaurant before they got more than two good coats.

The ice gorge is so great in the Niagara river at Niagara Falls that it has clogged the river so much that the American side of the falls was completely dry last week. Well America is dry, isn't it? So even the river went dry.

CARRIE'S TURN TO SMILE

Twenty years ago, when you could buy a soft coal stove that would heat three rooms for $16 and New York millionaires paid the hired girl only $15 a month, Carrie Nation, Kansas saloon buster, went to see T. R. at the White House and was gently ushered out. Carrie also tried to address the United States senate from the public gallery, and was thrown out again. But Carrie gets the last laugh. As the Chicago Herald and Examiner's poet expresses it:

Her little sharp hatchet is covered with rust,
As forgotten and lonely it lies;
Its happy red handle is still stained with rum,
But the country has gone to the drys.

An aged Kentucky woman died, leaving these sealed instructions: "I wish my funeral to be from my home. A cheap coffin and a plain gown. Let all who come to my funeral be merry, for I loved mirth when alive, and I wish mirth when dead." Do you believe in a life after death and that the departed one is going on to better and happier things? If so, death should involve no more grief than bidding farewell to a loved one departing on a joyous journey.

Familiarity doesn't always breed contempt, but you no longer see men stop to watch a woman get on a street car.

A SURE SIGN

Two little girls were playing on the street when a well-dressed woman passed them with a swish and a whirl. By the noise it was evident she wore a silk petticoat.

"What makes that noise?" whispered one little girl.

"Sh!" said the other child, "don't you know she's got money—rich folks always rattle and smell good."

The teacher of physiology was explaining to the class about the voluntary muscles being controlled by the brain and the involuntary muscles which were not. He asked some one to name a voluntary muscle. A little girl suggested the arm. Then he called for an involuntary muscle. For a full minute all was quiet, then a small boy raised his hand and suggested, 'Please, teacher, that must be the tongue."

SHE COMES HIGH

"Yes," said the old man to his visitor, "I am proud of my girls and would like to see them comfortably married, and as I have made a little money they will not go penniless to their husbands. There is Mary, 25 years old, and a really good girl. I shall give her $1,000 when she marries. Then comes Bet, who won't see 35 again. I shall give her $3,000. And the man who takes Eliza, who is 40, will have $5,000 with her."

The young man reflected a moment and then asked:

"You haven't one about 50, have you?"

Moderns wouldn't look at Lady Godiva, either. They'd just think it a publicity stunt.

Victory is sweet, but oh how bitter to buy a senate seat and then not get 'er.

Country editors say "we", just as Lindy does, being similarly situated; but it's the pay roll that keeps them up in the air.

Couldn't Oklahoma save money and energy by just buying a tack for the governor's chair?

An "aggressive war" is one in which a little country possessed of oil jumps on a big country that isn't doing a thing but stealing the oil.

Of course the south may bolt the party; but bolts never stay in place very long without nuts.

Don't worry about another war. War never comes to America until all of her ships are ready for the junk pile.

An educated man is one who knows just how and why and when the return of Teapot Dome will benefit the navy.

Americanism: Boasting that you are a red-blooded American; proudly tracing your ancestry to a mythical blue-blood.

Talk less and do more and reform will triumph. Women who oppose war can stop bearing cannon fodder.

Big Bill Thompson doesn't understand patriotism. When Americans pay $10 for the privilege of being mad at somebody, they want the $10 to represent a fine.

Wait. Henry's rubber plantation will come in bearing soon, and then he'll give you a car with each set of tires.

Note to faction leaders: Those who led political parties in the old days were rail splitters—not hair splitters.

Two-pants suits are a democratic institution. It no longer sounds arrogant when you say you left the tickets in your other pants.

The French army is to wear olive. Now how lovely it will be when each high explosive shell bears the sign of a dove.

Nogales, Arizona, is slyly advertising an "oasis"—meaning you can get a drink over the line in Mexico. And magazines that wouldn't print liquor ads are printing this one. New morality: It isn't wrong if you don't do it frankly and openly.

Say it with skid chains an' save th' flowers for th' sick!

Don't sit around waiting for an opening. Jonah did that and he got in a hole

Good-Bye to Cosgrave
Good Times for Lawyers
Beauty Experts Got Her
Up Goes Money

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1928, by N. Y. American, Inc.)

Justice Daniel F. Cohalan invited great and small to luncheon with President Cosgrave of Ireland's Free State, now on his way to Ireland.

Mayor Walker hoped that Cosgrave would come back some day as president "of the Irish nation." Justice Cohalan, a really powerful American of Irish blood, hoped "to see Ireland free from the center to the sea."

Mayor Walker's father and Justice Cohalan fought the home rule together years ago.

President Cosgrave talked of practical things, as they are. He, and good men like him in Ireland, will make a success of the Free State. They made an excellent start, giving 20 per cent of the state's income to educate Irish children.

The great water power now being developed in the River Shannon, enough to supply the whole state, will be the property of the Irish people, not the property of exploiters of the Irish people. That is something we don't do in America.

Samuel Untermyer, at the luncheon, told Otto H. Kahn: "This is the greatest time that ever was for lawyers, especially for good advocates. Any lawyer of ability can make a good income. Big lawyers that once appeared in court now sit in their offices, telling men like you what they may do and must not do." Mr. Kahn, you know, is very rich.

Mr. Untermyer offered to bet 3 to 1 that New York's street car trust won't succeed in raising the fare from 5 to 7 cents. Still youthful, Mr. Untermyer bets recklessly. What a street car trust wants it usually gets, especially in New York.

You think of Cosgrave, sailing back to wonderful Ireland, on his way to resume his work among a great people. It is hard to realize that the population of Ireland is one-half the population of New York City. It's what you ARE, not how MANY you are, that counts.

An unfortunate woman, falling into the hands of a medical "beauty specialist," was advised to have her "bow legs" straightened. While one doctor worked on the legs, sawing the bones, another, Dr. Schireson, was busy "removing a scar from her shoulder."

Gangrene attacked the unfortunate young woman's legs. Both were amputated, and she may die. Nobody probably had noticed the poor girl's legs except herself and the man that took her money. Nothing can persuade women to be content as nature made them.

The big fellows that regulate the price of money think it's time to put a damper on stock speculation. New York's Federal Reserve bank raises the discount rate to 4 per cent.

But values are there. Many industries, iron, steel, automobiles, and food, show activity that Federal Reserve rates do not influence. "It hath not yet been shown what we shall be," financial and otherwise. Don't sell short.

In 1927 this country sold to Germany goods worth $481,580,787, an increase of $117,000,000 in 12 months. We sold to Canada $835,878,090 of goods last year, a gain of nearly $100,000,000.

While business is good it doesn't matter much whether money costs ½ per cent more or less.

Claude H. Priddy, formerly a clergyman, murdered his wife and two sons, because "I feared they had contracted my incurable disease."

The unfortunate wife, according to his testimony, turned when he struck her a glancing blow in the back and said only, "No, dear, no, no."

"Then I finished her," says he. He also said, "I sent them to heaven and I will go to hell and suffer for it." It is to be hoped that he is right about that, if sane.

The first heavier than air ship that ever flew, carrying a man, the original Wright airplane, is on its way to England to be exhibited and remain permanently if the British choose. It should come back to this country, and the government ought to buy it for the Smithsonian Institution. Henry Ford would buy it for his museum, if the world's richest government can't afford it.

Mussolini continues simplifying Italy's government, which in substance is the expression of Mussolini's "I will". Only one political party is to exist. Only those will vote "who contribute to the progress of the nation."

The number of deputies will be reduced from 560 to 400. It would be simpler to let Mussolini cast one vote for the whole nation. That is what happens in reality.

In Day's News

Claude A Swanson the vigorous defender of the south's voting laws came into the United States senate from Virginia in 1911 to fill out the term of John W. Daniel. Later he was chosen by the legislature for a full term and has been twice re-eleted thus maintaining the southern tradition as to tenure of office and the theory that it pays to retain the man who has accumulated experience. His early career was not one of alluence or of easy conquest of an education and he worked his way through Randolph college and the law school of the University of Virginia. His public career began with is election to the Fifty-third congress. He served creditably during six succeeding congresses. In 1906 he temporarily ceased being a lawmaker and until 1910 was governor of Virginia. Then he returned to Washington as a senator.

ABE MARTIN

"If Colonel Lindberg's South American trip shows results I'm in favor o'sendin'him t' Wisconsin," said Tell Binkley t'day.

Keepin' mum about bein' insane till you git all your murderin' done don't count.

The Way OF THE World

By GROVE PATTERSON

KNOWLEDGE AND MYSTERY

A baby born dead in an Ohio hospital is made to live by the use of adrenalin. Two doctors and a nurse worked for an hour injecting the adrenalin. Life is yet a great mystery but knowledge is dispelling that mystery. It may not be long until we know from whence it comes and whither it seems to go.

CHURCH WASTE

Perpetuating needless churches in rural districts is costing millions. Cooperation and combination will result in more interest, better work, and will save a huge amount of money. Hope grows out of the sensible attitude of the largest gathering of churchmen since the Lausanne conference of last year. It met recently in Cleveland.

Common sense must never supplant emotion, but it must work with emotion.

TEACHERS DO BETTER

We hear less about the poor pay of school teachers. That's not because people are less interested in teachers, but because salaries have greatly improved in the last few years. In Spain it is said there are 10,000 teachers who receive 58 cents a day. Nobody blames teachers in America for wanting more money—they deserve more—but they should take time off to be thankful they do not teach in Spain.

STICKING TO PRINCIPLE

An eighty-year-old Buffalo man, looking back over a busy life, says he quit many jobs because he would not work on Sunday. And he says he always got better places through sticking to his resolution. Practical folks, perhaps just as good as this man, may say he was over-particular. Perhaps he was. Some work must be done on Sunday. The fact remains that the Buffalo man furnishes a good illustration of the profitable practice of sticking to principle.

REFUSING TO SEE

Lucy Larcom, known to our fathers and mothers, once said: "The weariness and sadness of life come from persistently closing our eyes to its greatness."

Men and women who are pessimistic, cynical, with little faith, are by no means wiser than the rest. Usually they themselves know better. They refuse to see the good in life, either because they want to be thought sophisticated or because they fear to expect great things.

They fear disappointment.

The courage to face the darkness is not the only courage. It sometimes takes courage, in a scoffing word, to insist there is sweetness and light.

A Name.

God gave me life and when I came
My parents gave to me a name.

A name to carry while I live—
The richest treasure they could give.

For other gifts may go astray,
High fortune may be tossed away.

Nor health, nor skill may long endure,
Only the name I bear is sure.

That to the end of time remains.
In spite of losses or of gains.

Some things I have I can forsake,
I choose what baggage I shall take.

What raiment I shall wear, what shoes
For each occasion I shall use.

Where'er to wander I'm inclined
Some things of mine I leave behind.

But from my name I'm never free
Forever it must go with me.

And since from it I cannot hide,
Lord, let me hold my name in pride.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

AVIATION ADVANCES

Mr. Will Rogers is even now telling about his Air trip to New York and back to Beverly Hills. Those who read the story will learn that part of the airway from Beverly Hills to Roosevelt Field is lighted by beacons, but not all of it.

The saving of a whole business day will be possible on the transcontinental airway when that route is completely lighted, it was announced by the Department of Commerce on January 20.

The Department furthermore estimated that the airway will be fully lighted by July, 1928, when the flight will be possible in two nights and one day.

"The saving of an entire business day on the Transcontinental air mail route between New York and San Francisco will be attained on completion of the airway lighting from Salt Lake City to San Francisco," according to a statement by W. P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, in connection with an inspection trip of F. C. Hingsburg, Chief of the Airways Division of the Department. Mr. Hingsburg left Washington January 20 for a general inspection of the west end of the Transcontinental and other western airways.

"When the entire Transcontinental route is lighted the present schedule will be changed," said Mr. MacCracken. "At present two days and one night are required to fly over this route. After the beacon lights and lighted intermediate fields are in operation on the whole airway an additional service will be possible. The trip can then be made between the two terminals in one day and two nights. This will save one business day."

"The Transcontinental will be completely lighted by June 30, 1928. The lighting will consist of 247 rotating electric beacons, 460 acetylene beacons, 62 arrow markers and 112 lighted intermediate fields, according to the Department's estimate. In addition, the Department plans to have weather observers at every 60 miles and to install radio stations at greater intervals to aid in broadcasting weather information along this important route. By June 30, 1928, there will be a total of 7,512 miles of lighted airways in operation."

In addition to inspecting the preparations on the western end of the Transcontinental, Mr. Hingsburg will check the general administration and operation of the airways between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles, and between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

LEST WE FORGET

The war has been over for some ten years now and the public can do a lot of forgetting in that time.

The worst sufferers from the war are not the dead and are not the people who lost some money.

The dead are beyond our reach. They have made the supreme sacrifice for their country and perhaps they are happier now than when they were here.

But it is the living wrecks of battle who want to be remembered, cripples, blinded and nerve racked, who linger on after the excitement has passed.

There are thousands of disabled ex-service men living today, from every State in the Union, and I got a letter from one of these men the other day.

They do not like to be pawed over and have no relish for sob stuff, but they are human beings and appreciate attention.

Of course the government ought to do something for them and it generally does, but getting money from a government is rather an unsatisfactory poultice to a crippled man.

It isn't the most fun in the world to have to live in a hospital and have some incurable disease. It is a long, lingering agony and nothing can withstand it except the continued soldierly spirit and brave thoughts.

It is one thing to return from the war and to be lionized by your home town. It is quite another thing to return disabled and be shut up the rest of your life in some institution.

Let us honor the dead and give them all praise, but let us not forget the living, nor fail to let them remind us of the terrible cost of war.

HE WHO MAKES—

A god of money makes a jest of his honor.
A friend of a little child will never lack for appreciation.
Slaves of his passions has conquered his worst enemies.
A mistake makes another if he refuses to admit it.
Play out of work saves himself from all drudgery.
Promises easily usually breaks them just as easily.
Pleasure his god makes shipwreck of his noblest and best.

OUR JUNIOR CITIZENS

By Education Committee of Federation of Women's Clubs

ALL NEW CASTLE SCHOOLS UNDER PLATOON SYSTEM

New Castle was one of the first four cities of the United States to adopt what is now called the platoon system of education. That was 10 or 12 years ago when its disturbance of a long established school program caused it to be regarded with suspicion—not only by the public, and naturally the pupils—but in many cases by teachers and principals as well. Perhaps it would not be going too far to say that the superintendent himself regarded it as a very doubtful experiment, for this was one forward educational step in which the school board took the initiative.

As a starter the system was applied to only one building, Oak street being the school selected for this purpose.

During the years which have intervened this system has been gradually developed and extended until it has included all the schools of the city. The mature judgment of principals and teachers formed through actual experience in the work, is now unanimously in favor of the platoon system. The McGill, Rose Avenue and Lincoln-Garfield buildings have the modern adaptation to this work. However, difficulties in other schools, occasioned by inadequate building equipment, are overcome through the experience and efficiency of the teachers.

Our superintendent tells us that we are far from having attained the goal in the possibilities of the platoon system. Satisfactory advance is being made this year in the addition of library and nature study work.

Former Objections Have Proven Strongest Features

Conversation with several of the principals brings out the fact that certain features of the work which received most strenuous objection in the start have proved to be its strongest points. For example, the changes of classes from room to room are not a waste of time, for they are made very quickly. And since it is natural for children to frequently change both position and employment, instead of being made nervous by these changes, nervousness is actually overcome.

Principals also state that it is not true that teachers do not become acquainted with their pupils, for through teaching a class of pupils in the same branch for three years they become more thoroughly acquainted with their capabilities and needs than was possible under the non-platoon system. Teachers having fewer branches to teach, become specialists in these lines and inferior teachers are weeded out. Children learn to adapt themselves to the direction of different teachers. Th ability to get along with people being most essential in business life, this contact with different teachers in itself is educational.

Dr. Green's Report to Platoon School Magazine

In a national magazine issued for the purpose of giving information concerning the development of this system, the following report of our schools was given, with an expression of the advantages of the platoon system by each of our New Castle principals:

"All elementary schools of New Castle operate under the platoon system. The new Arthur McGill school has been erected as a standard for the city. It includes all the features generally recognized as essential in a modern platoon school. The program for the year includes libraries, science rooms and the development of auditorium activities in every platoon school in the city. The following statements by our platoon school principals show what each considers the principal advantage of the plan. Iretta V. Dart: 'It increases the aptitude of the pupils, the efficiency of the teachers, and the service of the equipment.' James M. Hughes: 'It makes life happier for the children.' R. G. Leslie: 'It gives the teacher a better opportunity for effective teaching and develops initiative in the pupils.' W. A. Hoffmaster: 'A teacher has fewer subjects to prepare.' Nannie Mitcheltree: 'It gives opportunity for better preparation of lessons by teachers.' Anna R. Perry: 'It keeps children wholesomely occupied at activities which cause them to grow naturally in health, strength and the power to think for themselves.' B. K. Thacker: 'It makes school life more pleasant, therefore more effective.'"—Supt. Clyde C. Green.

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

The Crows Make Fun of a Dressed Up Stick.

The crows cawed so long and loud at the very notion of their being afraid of a "dressed up stick," as they called a scarecrow, that at last Peter joined in the fun and laughed as heartily as any of them.

"I suppose you have been making fun of us humans all the time," said the boy at last. "Here we have been trying to keep you crows away from the corn fields with a make-believe man which you have been so little in fear of that you have perched upon his very shoulders."

"Why shouldn't we laugh at you humans?" demanded Chief Crow then. "Do you think that we are so stupid a lot that we should not be able to tell the difference between a real man and a wooden one? No matter how quiet a real man tries to be he must move a little if one watches him long enough and a wooden man never does—no, not though it rains or hails or the sun shines hot. We are not very much afraid of just a man either—he is too slow moving to catch us very often. If he has a gun in his hands we fly. But we don't mind a hoe or a rake or anything else at all."

"A hoe! a rake!" exclaimed Peter in amazement. "Why I never imagined that you knew the names of things which belong to humans. Do you mean to tell me that you can tell the difference between a gun and a rake or a hoe?"

"Well, I should say we could!" replied Chief Crow proudly. "We would lose our lives many a time if it was not for this knowledge. Why, pray tell, should we let you Two-legs fool us?

"We follow the farmer as he ploughs the field and pick up all the nice fat grubs and worms that he turns up in the furrows. Then we watch the farmer come with a rake and make the rough earth all smooth again. Later on—a week or so, maybe—while we are still in the fields hunting worms and scratching for seeds we behold the farmer coming out of the barn with a hoe over his shoulder. We hop along not far behind him when he turn up fresh earth about the baby plants just peeping above the ground, fat grubs he turns up with the earth and we eat these. Why should we be afraid of a rake or a hoe? But a gun, now! That is a different thing. Bang! and one of us drops. We make for the tallest treetops when we see a gun."

"But how do you know what is a gun?" persisted Peter.

Chief Crow shook his head impatiently.

"Well, as to that, I can't tell you," replied he. "I really don't know. All I am sure of is that every crow in the world knows a gun when he sees it. Something tells him that it is dangerous—that it means trouble for the tribe—and he flies away. Never, though, has a crow been known to seek safety and leave his people in danger. He who sees the gun first, always warns the rest of the tribe in time, and they get out of the way o. the terrible bang stick. What it is that tells us we cannot tell; we do not know."

"Yes! Yes! Chieftain is right. Something inside us warns us—a gun is near! (Fly for your lives!) it whispers, we heed the warning. That is all we can tell you!" chorused the crows. With this little information Peter was forced to be content.

Chicken Thieves Busy On East Side

Mrs. Edward L. English of 203 S. Ray street reported to the police Saturday that the previous night some unknown person had entered her chickencoop, killing two chickens and injuring a number of others. The chickens killed were left in the coop. It is believed that the thieves were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose. Three men, two colored and one white, were seen on that street during the evening.

Large Variety Of Clubs At Franklin Junior High School

Scholars Have Variety Of Clubs To Meet Individual Needs.

During the first semester in the Benjamin Franklin Junior High school a large number of school clubs were organized in order to meet the individual needs of the different scholars. These clubs were formed to promote the general welfare of the students and to contribute to the welfare of the school, the home and the community.

In forming the different clubs not only were the individual needs of the individual students thought of and the various departments of the school represented but also field outside of the school's actitivies as represented.

Each club has its own student officers who conduct all meetings under the supervision of a faculty adviser. Such procedure provides not only for a type of training which will be useful through life but it develops individuality, resourcefulness and initiative.

A few of the clubs meet during the activity period but the majority of the groups meet every two weeks at the regular club period on Friday afternoon.

Below are given a list of the clubs with the faculty advisor:

Assembly Program Club, Miss Ruth Leyda; Handiwork Clubs, Miss Edelstein, Miss Drew and Miss Griffith; Art Club, Miss Welch ; Boys Handiwork Club, Mr. Lewis and Mr. Dobbs; Classics Club, Miss Eakin; Oral English Club, Miss Schumaker; Business Club, Miss Doyle; Dancing Club and Sanitary Club, Miss Vera Rummel; Travel Club, Miss Rose; Thrift Club, Boys' Uke Club, Miss Ruth MacEwan; French Club, Miss Louise Dickson; Science Club, Mr. Ruggles; Nature Study Club, Miss Sarah Weinschenk; Nature Club, Miss Maude Young; Bird Club, Mrs. Maldoon; History Club, Miss Elizabeth Beeler; Colonial History Club, Miss Margaret Barnes; Poetry Club, Miss Eva English; Salamagundi Club, Miss Margaret Reeher; Library Club, Miss Helen Westlake; Etiquette Club, Miss Ruth Wallace and the Sweet Shop, Miss Gress and Miss Howell.

Jack Hulme Makes Fine Progress With Wilmington Scouts

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 6.—All the phenomenal success which has accompanied the growth of the local Boy Scout troop has been attributed to the supervision of Scoutmaster Jack Hulme by the people of the college town. Since the organization of the troop by Jack last spring it has grown to the saturation point in numbers and has shown itself to be above the average in quality.

At present there are three star Scouts in the troop who, 10 months ago, were just becoming tenderfeet. These Scouts are: Howard Lee, Hans Holmes and Thomas Rogers. There are also three first-class Scouts in the troop who will soon be star Scouts. Charles Criss, Frank Goff and Gaily "Bud" Sharp comprise this group.

And in addition to the above mentioned distinguished troop members, Jack has eight second-class Scouts and several tenderfeet under his care. These second-class Scouts are: Robert Rose, Gerald Newton, Donald Rose, David Kennedy, Lawrence Kauffman, William Patterson, Ralph Gilliland and Russell Sewall.

In the opinion of most older city Scout organizations it is considered a big thing to boast of star Scouts in the troop. Consequently it is not to be wondered that the people of the college town are applauding the success Jack Hulme has had with the first New Wilmington troop.

Beaver Falls Men Granted Patents

By GEORGE H. MANNING
Washington Correspondent of The News

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 6.—Harry G. Traver of Beaver Falls has invented a new type of roller coaster train and the United States patent office has just granted him a patent covering the invention.

Mr. Traver's coaster is made up of small cars, any number of which can be coupled together into a train. The coupling attachments permit universal movement of the cars when hooked together. The inventor applied for a patent on August 10, 1926.

Another Beaver Falls inventor to obtain a patent is John C. Malone, who has patented a wire straightening machine. A feature of the machine is the rotating carrier through which the wire to be straightened is passed. Malone applied for a patent four years ago but the patent office has just granted him a patent.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Mary Lewis Gives Advice To Girls

American Opera Queen Says Lots Of Hard Work Brings Success

What does it mean to be "lucky?"

Lots of hard work and being ready when the opportunity comes to jump in and grab it.

So says Mary Lewis, charming American opera queen, who will give a recital in the Scottish Rite Auditorium on Tuesday, Feb. 14.

"The one thought I would like to leave with American girls, whatever their line of endeavor, is to continually perfect themselves in anticipation of the day when that perfection will give them the opportunity of stepping into the higher and bigger task," says Miss Lewis.

"They need not necessarily have a goal, but if they will conscientiously do their best and strive hard to always do a little better, the goal will come of itself.

"When I started to sing, or even when I sang in musical comedy, I never dreamed I would one day sing in the Metropolitan grand opera company. That was something to look up to, of course, and possibly it was because of the fact that I always worked hard trying to improve my voice with that unconsciously in view that I finally landed there."

Having climbed the highest mountain and sitting pretty on top of the world has not affected Miss Lewis adversely. She is thoroughly human, to begin with, ready to heed humble suggestions and requests, as you will find if you attend the concert and hear her sing, "Carry Me Back To Old Virginny" as an encore.

By the age of 15 Miss Lewis could play the pipe organ, which was her ambition just before she turned to vocal work, which she did not tackle in earnest until she was 16. Eight years ago, at the age of 18, she ran away again, this time with a vaudeville troupe, to San Francisco, where she sang in a cafe, all the time saving money for her vocal lessons.

"Girls who hope to succeed in this or any other line will have to remember that it takes a turmoil of work and pennies cannot be spent for finery and personal pleasures," she says.

Gentlemen, and ladies, too, for that matter, will likely prefer blondes after they see Miss Lewis, for she falls distinctly in that class, with a dimpled smile that must have won its way through many a hard struggle.

An Extraordinary Attraction

With justifiable pride, the management of the Capitol Theatre

today announces that it has secured the famous

ROYAL WELSH LADIES CHOIR

for an appearance in the theatre on

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 9, 10 and 11

The ROYAL WELSH LADIES CHOIR which is headed by Gertrude Gronow is one of the most talented organizations of its kind ever sent out from Wales. It is composed of fourteen young Welsh lassies every one of whom is an artist.

In the past two years they have toured the United States and Canada, singing before the most critical audiences in either country and their every appearance has been hailed with delight.

Through a fortunate coincidence, the choir has three days open next week, and at an expense unusual for vaudeville theatres, Charles Freeman, manager of the Capitol Theatre has secured the choir for New Castle.

It is a musical treat that no one can afford to miss. In spite of this unusual attraction there will be no increase in prices of admission to the Capitol Theatre.

Wheeler To Ask For Coal Probe

Senator Makes Visit To Number Of Coal Mining Camps

IS SURPRISED AT CONDITIONS FOUND

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—Branding conditions existing in the bituminous coal fields of western Pennsylvania as "a crying indictment of authorities here and in Washington," Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D) of Montana, who visited several mining camps over the week-end, will ask the senate interstate commerce committee today to take up at once the Johnson resolution providing for an investigation of the strike, he said before leaving for the capital.

Senator Wheeler described conditions he found in the mining camps as "inconceivable". The senate can do nothing to settle the strike, he pointed out, but he expects that body to force the hand of public officials by throwing the glaring light of publicity upon the situation.

"The hillsides of Pennsylvania," declared Wheeler, "are the most fertile breeding grounds of anarchy and bolshevism I have ever seen, comparable to conditions in certain cities in China." Wheeler visited China last year.

Meantime, the sheriff of Allegheny county ordered three deputies to Curry, Pa., to man machine guns for the protection of school children there. The Curry school, bullet-scarred from recent mine warfare, will be reopened for the first time since the lives of its 300 pupils were endangered by snipers' bullets.

The Montana senator, himself a member of the interstate commerce committee, went to Bruceton, near here, where the homes of union miners were fired upon, presumably by non-union miners.

He questioned coal and iron (company) police about the shooting, asking why they did not intervene, and was told that the small detail of company police present at the time would have been helpless before the much larger number of rioters.

In contrast to the statement of company police was the story of a Mrs. Fishman, who operates a small store in Bruceton. She told him that "a number of coal and iron police not only stood by and watched the negro strike-breakers shooting, but she and her daughters had seen the police join in the shooting."

Senator Wheeler expressed surprise that the people of Pittsburgh are not more aroused by the conditions of misery on the fringe of this large center of wealth.

"If we had a Roosevelt or a Wilson in the White House, in my judgment, this condition would not have been permitted to prevail as it has for the last 11 months," asserted the Democratic senator.

At one point on his tour, a company policeman told Wheeler a store window had been broken when a brick was hurled. He flared up and retorted: "Don't you think I know the difference between a brick and buckshot and rifleshot?"

"As a member of the interstate commerce committee, to which the Johnson resolution was referred, I wanted to get some first hand information," said Wheeler, upon his departure. "I felt there had been a good deal of exaggeration of conditions, but my visit here has more than confirmed the reports."

Scores of strikers and their families were interviewed by the senator at Bruceton, Broughton, Curry, Horning, Coverdale, Russelton, Harmarville, Harwick and Acmetonia, in addition to the coal and iron police, deputy sheriffs and local magistrates.

"I was amazed to find so many men on strike and to find them as peaceable as they are," he said. "I know something about strikes, living near mining camps in Montana for 22 years. In 1913 we had warfare conditions in Montana when the copper miners went on strike. Many things were done by both sides that I could not condone. But hardboiled as were the operators then, they did not eject the miners from their homes.

"It is inconceivable to me that the mining companies in Pittsburgh should practically throw these families, including women and children, into the streets in mid-winter, particularly as many of the houses today are still empty and not used by the companies.

"I have listened to stories of brutalities by the coal and iron police supposed to enforce the law in the employ of the mining companies themselves. I cannot understand a great state like Pennsylvania turning over to the mining companies the enforcement of law.

"In my judgment it is absolutely contrary to fundamental principles on which this government was founded. I have been shocked by the living conditions in the thin shacks housing families of 10 or 12 in two rooms, of six and seven children sleeping in one bed, by stories of children living for a week at a time without milk, families without food."

San Antonio's Siamese Twins

While there have been a number of instances of recent years of cases which paralleled the famous "Siamese Twins," Chang and Eng, who were brought to America almost a century ago, by the famous P. T. Barnum, the San Antonio "Siamese Twins," now 17 years of age, and are now touring this country, are the only pair alive at the present time.

Strange as it may seem these girls are talented and despite their handicap are enabled to live lives that are quite normal. Their case has been watched by medical men and others with great interest during their residence in America.

These girls, Daisy and Violet Hilton, were really born in Brighton, England, but for the past 15 years have been with friends at San Antonio, Texas.

Like all twins born joined together, they automatically received the appelation, "Siamese Twins," and their life and progress has attracted country-wide notice, and will continue to do so as long as they live.

MENU HINT

Do you eat enough fruit? If you don't, reform at once. You may not be able to afford strawberries in February or even grapefruits and oranges, but you can eat apples, prunes, cranberries, cooked tomatoes—yes, tomatoes are classed as fruits. Many of you who are addicted to pie for dessert might profitably substitute apples or oranges and bananas, prune whip or stewed prunes or canned fruit which you have prepared in the summer months.

Baked Beans — Brown Bread
Cabbage Salad — Home-made Catsup
Baked Apples — Graham Crackers
Coffee

TODAY'S RECIPES

Creamed Tuna Fish—Pour the oil off a small can of tuna fish, flake the fish. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, mix with it three tablespoons of flour, and gradually add one pint of milk. Stir until smooth and boiling, add tuna fish, season with salt and pepper and serve over the riced potatoes.

Baked Beans—Here is my favorite baked bean recipe. If your family prefers them without tomato, well and good. Soak one pound of navy beans in cold water over night. The business woman can put them on to soak in the morning and cook them in the evening. Pour off the water, put on fresh, add a little soda and let come to a boil. Pour water off, put on fresh and cook until the skins of the beans will roll up when you blow upon a few held in a spoon. Put in baking dish or bean pot, add one teaspoon or more of salt, a tablespoon of molasses or brown sugar, a teaspoon of dry mustard mixed in cold water, a cup of tomatoes — strained or not, as you prefer—or a can of tomato soup, a small piece—one-fourth pound—salt pork. Cover and bake very slowly four hours.

Quick Baked Apples—Prepare apples as for baking, arrange in a pudding dish, fill holes with brown sugar and top with a little cinnamon. Cover bottom of dish with a little water and place on top of stove or a low burner. Put a tight lid on and cook until done. Saves time and fuel.

Oatmeal Cookies — Cream three-fourths cup butter or other shortening with one cup sugar, add two well-beaten eggs. Sift three-fourths teaspoon soda in two cups flour, add one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, two cups uncooked rolled oats and one cup raisins, or half raisins and half nut meats sprinkled with flour. Drop on buttered tins and bake.

Do Not Soak Meat

Do not soak any kind of fresh meat before cooking. It draws out the juices. Wipe it with a damp cloth to clean before cooking.

MENU HINT

The months following Christmas are usually hard on one's pocketbook. All sorts of bills come due and the after-the-holiday sales are a constant temptation, as linen and other household supplies and clothes often need replenishing. We had better economize in our food supply, if we can do so without sacrificing food values and attractiveness.

Old Sores and Ulcers Can Be Healed!

Many a person has succeeded in healing stubborn old sores and ulcers with applications of Peterson's Ointment after expensive treatments had utterly failed.

Here is a letter well worth reading and if you have a friend afflicted the same, why not send him this?

"About a year ago, I contracted 15 varicose ulcers on my arm which rapidly grew worse. They extended up my whole arm, one-half inch deep. I used several salves, but instead of making my arm better they made it worse. Blood poisoning nearly set in. Doctors told me I would have to have my arm amputated. Finally I read about your Peterson's Ointment in the newspapers and began to use it. After several boxes I began to see an improvement, and within a short time the ulcers were entirely closed up and healed. I am glad to say a good word for Peterson's Ointment and you can refer to me any time."—Mrs. Patrick O'Neill, Buffalo, N. Y.

Nearly every druggist recommends Peterson's Ointment and you can get a good-sized box for only 35 cents.

Beck Declares Seats Of Many In Congress Will Be In Danger

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Warning the House Elections committee that if he is unseated the right of more than half the members of Congress will be placed in jeopardy, Rep. James M. Beck (R) of Pennsylvania, pleaded with the committee today for a favorable report in his contest.

Beck, elected from the Philadelphia district of Senator-elect William S. Vare, asserted that he had fully complied with all provisions of the constitution and state law before becoming a candidate.

A former solicitor-general of the United States and student of the constitution, Beck went into constitutional history to show that he was an "inhabitant" of Pennsylvania as the word was defined in debates of the framers of the constitution.

His plea followed that of Rep. Kent (D) of Pennsylvania, prosecutor of the contest, which was started on motion of Rep. Garrett (D) of Tennessee, the Democratic leader in the House.

Beck's residence and law office in Washington, his summer home in Seabright, N. J., his years of law practice in New York and his lack of residence in Philadelphia, were cited as reasons for sustaining charges that Beck was not entitled to vote or be voted for in Pennsylvania.

Framers of the constitution, Beck said, put the word "inhabitant" in its restrictions upon representatives in Congress, rejecting the word "resident".

"To be an 'inhabitant' referred not to physical presence, but to a political status," he said.

Beck said that he declared at Philadedphia on April 30, 1925, his intention to resume his citizenship in Philadelphia, and voted in one election before he was named for Congress.

"To deny me a seat because I had a home in Washington, would be to disqualify nearly one-half of the Senate and a considerable number of the House of Representatives," said Beck.

He pointed out that Senator Borah lives far more in Washington than in Idaho, and that the late Senator Lodge owned a home in Washington, spending but little time in Massachusetts.

His right to seek election was never questioned during the campaign in Philadelphia, he said.

Believes Matters In Kansas City Can Be Straightened Out

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—"I believe that everything will be adjusted and I have no doubht that the Republican convention will be held in Kansas City as scheduled," today declared Charles D. Hilles, Republican national committeeman and chairman of the convention's committee of arrangements, commenting on reports that Kansas City was threatened with loss of the convention through lack of accommodations.

While Hilles would not deny that there was opposition to Kansas City as a convention site, he said he knew of no serious opposition to carrying out the plans of the party for gathering there.

Hilles said the arrangements committee would meet in Washington on next Thursday and Friday and would make a definite decision on the matter.

"Of course, delegates, officials of the Republican party and newspapermen must be taken care of at the convention but I believe it is absurd not to think this can be arranged," he said.

Connecticut Girl To Wed Mulatto

Wedding Is Scheduled For Tomorrow, According To Principals

(International News Service)

ROCKVILLE, Conn. Feb. 6.—Undismayed over the storm of criticism that has been aroused by the plan of Beatrice Fuller, 19 year old "blue blood" society girl and Mayflower descendant to wed Clarence Kellem, a mulatto, the principals in the "genuine love match," today completed plans for their wedding tomorrow.

"Ours is a case of love at first sight," the attractive Miss Fuller said. "I fell in love with Clarence at the very first meeting and he fell head over heels in love too. I know I'm making no mistake in marrying him."

The prospective bridegroom, who served two years in the United States navy, was equally frank about the marriage.

"Yes, I expect to get married tomorrow," Kellem said. "No, I don't know who will perform the ceremony, or whether it will be at the bride's home or in a church."

Kellem's negro descent is not readily apparent. At first glance he appears to be white. But when the reporter asked him if his father was a mulatto he frankly replied:—

"No, he was a full-blooded negro. My mother was white."

"She loves me and I love her. Why shouldn't we get married? I don't see why all this fuss about it."

Conference Is Facing Crisis

Pan-American Conference To Take Up Intervention Question

(International News Service)

HAVANA, Feb. 6.—The sixth Pan-American conference opened another week's session today facing what most observers believe will be the real crisis in its affairs—the question of intervention.

The issue, admittedly the bugaboo of the conference from the first, after much preliminary skirmishing was brought squarely to the fore at the two last protracted meetings of the committee on public international law.

Some delegates assert that unless an agreement concerning the issue is reached this week, the Pan-American conference will end in failure. Others, however, contend that, in view of previous experience with similar gatherings of nations, a compromise will be effected so that an appearance of satisfaction at least will be maintained by all the delegates.

The present hope of salvation, according to many, is the newly appointed subcommittee to the international law commission. The sub-committee will meet behind closed doors and that, it is claimed will be an incentive to better harmony. Charles E. Hughes, is chairman of the sub-committee.

Discover Cause Of Blast At Kane

Mystery In Explosion That Stirred Communitly On Saturday Is Explained

(International News Service)

KANE, Pa., Feb. 6.—Ten quarts of nitroglycerine, two sticks of dynamite and a box of blasting caps detonating in the woods two and a half miles from here caused the explosion that shook Kane and this section of the state within a radius of 30 miles, it was revealed today.

Four men, whose tracks in the snow were discovered, caused the explosion in an attempt to stir up some excitement, it is believed. The dynamite caps and 100 feet of fuse were stolen from the tool house of a rock crushing company. It is believed the nitroglycerine was taken from an oil well shooting magazine some time ago, as none was reported missing in the past few days.

The source of the explosion was discovered by Charles Stuffolino, 22, who searched the woods because windows were broken in his home. A half mile away he found the scene of the blast. Trees within a radius of 10 yards were shattered by the concussion.

Until the discovery of the scene much speculation had been aroused concerning the source and the cause of the blast. Theories were advanced ranging from the destruction of a gigantic still to the impact of a meteor with the earth.

State Highways Repaint Signs

Warning Signs Being Repainted Black Lettering On Yellow Background

It has been noticed that the Pennsylvania State Highways Department is repainting the warning signs at road crossings, curves, school zones, etc. The new color scheme is black lettering on a yellow background, the barder of the keystone and sign also being black.

Former signs of the department were painted red and white, mostly red lettering on white background, but the more dangerous locations having the lettering in white on a red background. The new color scheme seems to be in agreement with several other states that have adopted the black and yellow scheme. It seems the combination that produces the best visibility by both day and night.

It has been announced that likely this spring route numbers will also be placed on steel standards near the pavement so that they may be better seen. It is likely that these numbers will be erected as soon as spring weather opens up.

Ice Gorge Moves Off Neshannock

Dynamite Is Used To Break Up Gorge In Creek Sunday

NO DAMAGE DONE BY BIG GORGE

When it became apparent Sunday morning, that the weather conditions were such that the ice covered Neshannock Creek might be the scene of an ice gorge, that would probably cause a flooded condition in parts of the city authorities got busy in an effort to clear off the ice above the Rosena furnace dam.

A group of city employes under the direction of Councilman C. H. Reeves, Street Commissioner Harry Moore and assisted by William H. Kleckner, superintendent of the No. 3 plant of the Lehigh Portland Cement company and an employe of that plant, expert in the use of dynamite, started an effort to dynamite a channel from the dam eastward, about 1 o'clock.

Quite a number of shots of dynamite had been exploded and loosened up the ice to about the South Mill street bridge, when at 1:30 o'clock, the gorged ice in the river channel gave a considerable heave as a result of the water pressure from upstream. The dynamiting, as well as nature, had done its work and the ice broke up in such a manner that a channel was provided, which constantly widened until it was the width of the stream and the ice did not gorge but was carried off down stream.

Some of the cellars in the Neshannock avenue district did have some water in them and at the upper end of Neshannock avenue, there was some ice thrown up in the rear yards, before the ice let go and was carried down stream.

Fortunately no damage was done and the people of Neshannock avenue and the downtown district have reason to be thankful.

Make Reports Of Auto Accidents

Numerous Mishaps Occur On Streets Of City Over Week End

Automobile accidents reported over the week-end to the police were quite numerous.

John G. Jones, 316 Boyles avenue, reported Saturday that he was driving west on West Washington street, and street car No. 363, in charge of C. J. Roeder, was en route east on West Washington street. Before coming to Lowery street the Jones car got in the street car tracks, and in trying to turn out the machine skidded into the front of the street car. Considerable damage was done and Mr. Jones had his hand injured.

E. P. Kanengeiser, 604 South Mill street, reported Saturday that he was driving south on South Mill street at Taylor street, when a truck of the Scarazzo Coal Company ahead of his machine stopped and then started to make a turn into Taylor street. His machine ran into the rear of the truck, doing some damage.

James Scarazzo of the Scarazzo Coal Company reported Saturday that he was in charge of a truck unloading some coal at 102 Milton street. The unloading of the coal had just been completed when some boy got into the cab of the truck and released the brakes and it started running away down grade. It struck a light pole at Hutchison street, breaking it off.

Paul E. Garroway, 221 Pearson street, reported Saturday that he was driving west on West Washington street at the P. & L. E. railroad crossing and he did not notice the guard gates going down until it was too late to avoid hitting the right gate. It and the machine were damaged.

Clarence McConnell, 931 Beckford street, reported Sunday that his machine was parked on East Washington street near Brinton Stop and on the north side of the street, when a car bearing Pennsylvania license 590-549, going west on Washington street, ran into the rear of his machine, doing some damage.

Mercer Townships In Debt For Roads

Commissioners Will Not Appropriate For Ash And Slag roads This Year

MERCER, Pa., Feb. 6.—There will be no appropriation for ash and slag road building made by the County Commissioners this year, it is announced today at the court house.

The fact that the state resources for this type of road building are also exhausted leaves the matter up to the townships to construct alone.

Many of the townships are in debt for roads already built.

Without help there is little chance of them carrying on with any extensive road building program.

The practice of the County Commissioners had been to extend aid to the amount of $1500 a mile on ash roads and $2000 on slag.

The involved situation of finances in which the county officials find themselves makes curtailment of expenses necessary.

ICE HARVEST AT CONNEAUT UNDER WAY

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., Feb. 6.—The annual ice harvest is under way here with the crop six to eight inches thick. While the quantity this year will not be as large as formerly the outlook is good and all the ice houses here will be filled.

Over 85 carloads will be shipped away within the next few days. Several ice houses which blew down in a storm last year were rebuilt but the others will be quickly filled.

Physicians Advise Thin-Blooded People To Eat More Liver

Hundreds of Thousands Eating Liver to Get Rich Red Blood

Physicians in New York and other cities who have tested and prescribed a diet of beefs liver in cases of poverty of the blood or anemia are now prescribing a preparation called Hemo-Liver, which is made by a scientific process from fresh beefs livers.

By this process the "Mysterious Substance" or vital elements that are obtained by eating liver are extracted and put up in the form of an elixir which is very palatable and pleasant to taste.

Hemo-Liver is full of the vital elements or "Mysterious Substance" that is one of the great discoveries of recent years and by taking a tablespoonful three times a day you'll get more and quicker benefit than by eating pounds of liver.

Every progressive druggist sells Hemo-Liver in a big 12 ounce bottle that will last eight days.

"Men and women who are suffering from lowered vitality, general weakness, overwork, nervous breakdown or anemia can put their faith in Hemo-Liver. For feeble old people, girls 13 to 18 and in convalescence it won't fail. It strengthens the nerves, increases the red blood cells, promotes health and rebuilds energy so quickly that often physicians are astonished."

Why not get a bottle of Hemo-Liver today—eight days' treatment—and if after you have taken one bottle you don't say Hemo-Liver is the greatest health builder you ever heard of—get your money back.

Not a patent medicine; mind you—but the "Mysterious Substance" or vitamines extracted from fresh beefs liver.

TRAINED NURSE SUFFERED FROM STOMACH MISERY

Tells Of Blessed Relief Ten Herbs Gave; Feels Better In Every Way.

"I suffered from acute indigestion, which brought on sour, acid stomach, with formation of gas and considerable pain," was the recent statement of Mrs. Laura Martin, 18 Sixteenth Street, S. E., Washington, D. C., according to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 E. Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs. "the disturbed stomach affected my liver, kidneys and bowels, and caused biliousness and constipation," Mrs. Martin continued. "I had terrible pains across my back, and was more or less nervous, easily excited and irritable.

MRS. LAURA MARTIN

"I am a professional nurse and Ten Herbs was first brought to my attention by a professional friend. This medicine being a combination of Nature products, I decided to try it. Ten Herbs began at once to sweeten the stomach and aid digestion, so in a few days I noticed a big change and began to feel normal again. It eliminated the food waste; gently stimulated the organs to proper activity, and toned up my system just as was required. There was a general strengthening and upbuilding. My nerves are stronger, and I feel better in every respect. The Nature products in Ten Herbs will cleanse, purify and invigorate the digestive system. I believe that almost anybody would be benefitted by Ten Herbs; and, while effective, it is mild and safe. I do not hesitate to recommend it to anyone."

Ten Herbs is used and highly recommended for indigestion, constipation, pain and agony in stomach and chest, heavy or burning feeling in stomach, belching a sour liquid or bits of food, gas and bloating, headaches, dizziness, nervousness, loss of appetite, pains or stiffness across back, frequent rising at night, biliousness, and other such disorders.

The Ten Herbs Man is at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 East Washington Street, New Castle, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. He will be glad to tell you how to take it to get the best results. Free sample given.

Firemen Respond To Two Alarms

Firemen were called upon to answer two alarms of fire Sunday.

The first of the alarms was from box 16 at 2:40 a. m. Sunday morning. It called the firemen to the Rick-Overland company garage and salesroom at 10-16 Shenango street.

Apparently the roof about the chimney had taken afire from the heated condition of the chimney. The fire started here had spread, when some of the embers fell into some stuff inside the garage that proved inflammable.

The firemen did good work and stopped the blaze, before it had made much headway. The total loss is estimated at $150.

An alarm from box 32 at 4 p. m. Sunday afternoon called the firemen to the property of Walter Conover, 116½ South Walnut street. In some manner, the heat and fire in the chimney had set on fire some wood under cement and near the chimney. The loss was about $15.

Calahan Says Scout Troops Need Sponsors

After a very careful study of methods used throughout the country, the Lawrence county council, Boy Scouts of America, has come to the definite conclusion that troops of Boy Scouts, to be successful, must be sponsored by permanent organizations which have as their main objectives interest in human beings, announces J. Lee Calahan, scout executive.

For a time, successful troops have been administered by an individual, but this council is so firmly convinced that this is the exception and not the rule that it does not hesitate to insist upon a troop having a permanent backing before applying for its charter through the Lawrence county office, Mr. Calahan continues.

"The organization of a troop is a difficult thing," Mr. Calahan says. "The plan is complicated at the best. First, we have the Lawrence county council, to which all troops are responsible. Then there is the official board of a church or organization who are responsible for the troop. This board also sees that troop committeemen are appointed, sees that a sponsorship agreement is signed and sees that there is intelligent presentation of the motives of scoutcraft and the understanding.

"To the troop committee, one of the hardest duties falls. They must carry out the sponsorship agreement, they must register the troop promptly and they must meet personally each applicant for membership and examine him. Added to this, they should assist the scoutmaster in recruiting boys, they should select and secure the best leader for their boys that they can get, and finally, the troop committee should be schooled in the technical details of scouting so that no problem which is presented to them will be beyond their solution.

"And further, I believe that churches, or similar institutions, should be the ones to sponsor Boy Scout troops, because all churches are, primarily, based upon the principles of right living. They believe that doing good is better than knowing good. Good men are always associated with churches, so it is a normal thing to look to the church for good leadership. A man who is a member of a church has made a pledge to do right and to help others.

"Boys need the influence of devout leadership. They need the atmosphere of the church in their daily life, in their play, school and good turns.

"To give all of this, scouting is the only program. But it takes care and thought on the part of a large group to make it practical. And finally, when it comes to leadership, I am sure that everyone will agree with me when I say that, fundamentally, bad leadership always brings evil results."

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All Druggists.

SCOTT HAS NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED AT BEAVER ON JUNE 11th, 1822

M. L. Scott of New Wilmington has a newspaper in his possession which is believed to be one of the oldest in the county. The paper is called the Western Argus, and the copy which Mr. Scott has was published at Beaver, Pa., on June 11, 1822. It is a four-page paper about the size of the Saturday Evening Post. The editor was James Logan.

Almost the entire front page is taken up with an obituary of General Stark, and the remainder of the paper consists of foreign news of various kinds. Strange to say, there are no items of a local nature about Beaver. There is very little advertising. One item, a forerunner of the now popular want ad, offers a reward of six cents for the return of a lost dog.

Mr. Scott found the paper among some old papers left by his wife's people.

Vaccination Check Asked Of Teachers

County Medical Director Announces Check Up Being Made In District

Lawrence County Medical Director Dr. H. C. Harper requests all teachers in the county to make a check-up on vaccinations in their respective schools and to make certain that all pupils have proper vaccination certicates.

Dr. Harper states that the state health department demands a definite vaccination scar before they will state vaccination to have been certain.

Word comes from Harrisburg that inspectors of the bureau of field inspection of the state health department are now at work in the fourth-class school districts checking up on the unvaccinated pupils and those who were unsuccessfully vaccinated for the present school term. The cooperation of all teachers and parents in seeing that the children are all successfully vaccinated before the inspectors arrive will be appreciated.

Scouts who cannot pick up the WEAF station will have almost 200 other stations in all parts of the country broadcasting Scout programs during the week. Some stations will be on the air each evening.

Are you one of the millions who make this mistake?

Make the personal health test and see what one simple change in diet can do for you!

IT'S natural to think that the caffein you take with your meals drives away fatigue—"picks you up." Something does—and isn't caffein a stimulant?

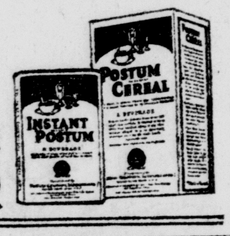

Yes, but caffein doesn't work so fast. It's the warmth of the drink that gives you an immediate sense of comfort. The full effect of the caffein comes later—hours later. Then this drug stimulant whips up your nerves—repels sleep—drives the brain on when every natural impulse may be crying for rest.

Don't be fooled any longer! Change from caffein to Postum!

You'll get the mealtime "pick up" you want from Postum's genial warmth and zestful flavor. But afterward, when you want to rest, you can! For Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran—no trace of any artificial stimulant in it. Postum never robs you of sleep, never affects the nerves or causes indigestion.

Prove it—this way! Make Postum your mealtime drink for thirty days! Then see how much better you feel! Your grocer has Postum—either Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup, or Postum Cereal, prepared by boiling. Order today!

Liver Doesn't Hurt but Watch Out

The dangerous thing about liver trouble is that it may be present and not recognized as such! No pain probably in the vicinity of the liver, but mysterious sick headaches, dizzy spells, kidney disturbances and probably heart palpitation and high blood pressure.

No organ will bear closer watching than the liver. It's the liver's important job to keep the blood clean of the poisons formed in food waste. Let the liver become sluggish, as it frequently does under the strain of modern living, and the whole system becomes toxic, which weakens stomach, kidneys and heart.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal, active functioning. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists.

Branch Library Is Also For Adults

Would Fail In Purpose If Confined Entirely To Children, Says Librarian

An opinion that has become prevelant since the South Side Branch of the New Castle Public Library has become a reality is that it will only be used for children. This is an error, and Miss Alice Sterling, librarian, wishes a correction to be made.

"The South Side branch" says Miss Sterling, "is to be for every resident of the South Side. It is not primarily a childrens' branch, nor was it ever intended to be a childrens' branch. If we wished to appeal entirely to children, we could have gone into the public schools and there established a branch. But, as all library workers know, adults will not patronize a branch of a library if it is situated in a school house, and that is why we have gone somewhere else to locate the branch.

"I am sure that I should consider the South Side branch a rank failure if adults do not patronize it. It is for everyone, that is the ideal of the public library. And we only hope that our first branch will be a success."

BOY 14 HAS 64 "BABY HOLD-UPS"

That he had committed 64 thefts from children in four weeks was the confession made by a 14-year-old boy in Glasgow, Scotland, recently. He is said to have waited at store doors and when children came out with purchases he held them up and told them that the wrong change had been given them and that he had been sent to get the change back that the error might be righted. He then disappeared and used part of the money to gamble with adults.

BRACELET WATCHES LATEST

Society women of Europe have adopted a new fashion at dances this season. On their arm is always a bracelet wrist watch. At times it may be the only bracelet, but often it is one of several. The oval or oblong, running up the arm instead of across it, are the favorite shapes. The bracelet watches usually are very elaborately jeweled, and some are set in black or shagren bands.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Bones of Contention

By Claire Wesson

HOLLY had quite made up her mind to leave Ramsay—that is, some time after the first of the year. She would move out and get some other job. With this marriage business she was "fed up"—that is, she would be after the first of the year. This New Year would be like all the other three of their life together. Red haired Ramsay would promise and "resolute" everlastingly that he would never, never again, ask the Quiddams in for bridge—so help him, Sally Hopkins.

"There! Now, are you satisfied?" He would finish with a shout of laughter.

And Holly would be "satisfied"—until it happened again.

This year he would undoubtedly break all records. Last year it was in February they started coming, and the year before that, in April. Never would she forget. What stout young Jane didn't know about bridge, and, worse, what she thought she knew, would wreck one. And her manner. And if George was a real he-man, then she, Holly, was Queen of Rumania.

So she would be firm this year—no suffering spells in corners. She would use forethought and be ready—Holly was 22. She had been orphaned when small.

With cool, gray eyes, blued to steel, and cheeks like the berries for which her New England grandmother had named her, she rounded out her resolve. Weren't there plenty of other young couples coming in for bridge? She would stand no more nonsense from the "kidding," easy-going Ramsay.

At their New Year's breakfast he was preoccupied. He foreswore the Quiddams, but without vehemence or jocularity. The promise was expected of him, but no live young chap could be expected to keep it. He studied her covertly. Then he laughed ringingly as usual, kissed her hair and left for the office. Flashing-eyed and determined, Holly watched him go . . .

The moment of relinquishment brings a strange lack of human feeling to the young woman of character, who insists upon what she considers her rights in marriage. Such a moment was serious. Holly's when she heard the Quiddams and Ramsay stamping snow from their feet in the hallway on New year's evening. Quick work. Ramsay has decided to ride her down.

The dainty table was set. Calmly she laid the extra places, for Holly was as "proud as Lucifer." She sat through dinner and bridge, marvelling at her own serenity. Jane's frequent assertions of being "all gummed up" by the chocolates she ate between hands had lost the power to annoy.

At George's playful "quit your Quiddams," tossed gaily at Jane's many mis-plays, her smile was elastic. George being jelly to Jane's "post mortem," beamed upon her chubby coyness. So did Ramsay.

Jane's smooth white hand was as usual on George's shoulder while he played the rubber game. He was an excellent player, so had no difficulty in tossing "quit your Quiddams" to Jane at tense moments in Holly's play.

Her laugh tinkled musically more than once. Let them do their worse; tonight, she was concerned no longer. Like a buoy whose mooring line has been cut with one quick slash, she was adrift on the channel of the moment.

Ramsey's shout of laughter was present. But Holly, detached, didn't trouble to notice. She stole quick glances at the clock. In a few hours she would be on her way.

Yes, Holly was "proud as Lucifer," and it is safe to assume that this gentleman was wholly unaware of his ticklish position before the fall.

When the "Bones of Contention" had departed, Ramsay called her back from the staircase up which she was aloofly moving.

"Holly, how long will it take you to pack?"

Slowly but surely, the ground—the axminster rug—was slipping from beneath her. She was standing upright and very immobile. Her breath caught and she had all the sensation felt in a sudden and swiftly descending elevator.

Ramsay was staring intently at her face. "What is the matter?"

N—nothing," she managed.

He drank a glass of water.

"I've sold the house," he announced curtly.

"When?" came in dazed fashion.

"Today!" His tone was short, exact. She didn't know this Ramsay—had never met him before.

"Why?" she asked.

"A new resolution. I'm quitting you."

Her return from the second for descent was not so rapid. Then fierce young pride flamed her tongue.

"We're both of the same mind!"

"So I conclude," He studied her for a moment. "Jane's in love with her husband. You're not. We'll disband."

"Jane—George—"

"Yes, Jane, I thought she'd teach you something. She hasn't. And George's father was the best friend I ever had."

"I—see."

"You see, yes; but you don't feel. You're a bundle of nerves and cold pride."

Less and less she knew this stranger. No longer easy-going, laughing—a quick, resounding laugh. Something in his face, as he turned and marched up the stairs, struck her like a blow.

She slithered to the rug, her mouth pressing against it to drown the tempest, the torrent of tears; her pride was in the dust, with all her plans which never could have been triumphantly carried out. Ten minutes later he caught her up, racked and gasping.

"I—I never could be like—like Jane."

"No—no," he tried to soothe. Then he gulped. "But you could—be yourself, Holly." Their hot tears mingled.

"I thought you were happy," she muttered, lost. "You're always laughing."

That pecular something was in his eyes again. "Yes—but sometimes—well, what's a ginger-bread-ed chap to do? It's expected of him." His mouth twisted wryly. "Sometimes," he went on, while he looked away from her, "there's an empty little dungeon in the tower of laughter—that may be the reason it sounds so—"

Why—why—he looked shy. Ramsay! "Oh—oh!" moaned Holly's throat against his forehead, sweet music to him.

"Do you know, dear, I've envied that foolishly grinning dub, George."

"Dub?"

"Oh, well, you know what I mean."

"Yes, yes." Her ignorance had been appalling.

"The house—" she wailed later.

His smile was still shaky from upheaval.

"The deal isn't closed. We'll put it off."

"Forever!" She gripped him fiercely.

And Ramsay smiled sunnily—and foolishly.

"Why do you object to children in the houses which you have to let?"

"As a matter of kindness. People who are raising families can't be expected to pay the rent I require."

---

"I understand your wife is taking a course with one of those efficiency experts?"

"Yes; she is now saving time by collecting all the old calendars."

Perfect Harmony

By Monte Darrell

MRS. HERMAN PERCIVAL was the most popular woman in Ashville. She said so herself. She had the biggest house and the most expensive as well as the most exclusive furniture. Her flower garden was the rarest of its kinds. And no other woman in town had two cars. Those who found themselves guests at her parties thought they had received the highest honor Ashville could give.

And of what did Mrs. Percival's household consist? There was James, the chauffeur, who had served Mrs. Van Dyke of New York City before entering the employ of the honorable Percivals. Then there was Marie, the maid, who had dressed Mme. Richard's hair when she had come to visit America. And Liza, the cook, had served many a titled guest at "Nizviu," the popular Summer resort.

All, but one important member of the great Percivals must not be neglected. That member was fluffy little Dodo. Mrs. Percival's poodle dog and constant companion. Dressed always in gayly colored collar bands, Dodo would look out at the world in the same manner that Mrs. Percival was wont to use on her inferiors. In short, Dodo's little turned-up nose was ample advertisement of his egotistic self.

Then, out of courtesy, one must not forget to mention Mr. Herman Percival, husband to Mrs. Percival.

Several of the leading women of the town were gathered at Mrs. Percival's for bridge one Wednesday afternoon. The day being rather warm, they were settled comfortably on the lawn. Dodo, in all her dainty white fluffiness, was watching beside her mistress.

Suddenly Dodo's attention was attracted by a horse and buggy that was parked on the other side of the street. Far be it from dainty Dodo to be interested in an ordinary buggy. Oh, no, he was interested in the desperate-looking bull dog that was sitting so importantly on the front seat.

Dodo barked and Mrs. Percival patted him on the head soothingly. There, there, Dodo. Don't bark, please. It interrupts the game so, dear."

Dodo was silenced for a few minutes and then he turned to the bulldog. What business had that ugly looking brute to hold his head so high and act as though he alone ruled the world? Very cautiously Dodo made his way from the side of his mistress toward the gate. Pausing there, he looked askance at the intruder across the street.

Now, Fido was no brute, far from it. But this impertinent little thing near the gate—what did he think he was, anyway? He'd teach the wretch a lesson.

Fido jumped from the seat and rushed at Dodo. The latter, all excited, dashed for his mistress, who stood up and confronted the bulldog haughtily.

Fido knew a lady when he saw one and would have bounded away at the command had he not seen the contemptuous smile lurking in Dodo's eyes. That was too much for any dog. Fido jumped at Dodo, in the arms of Mrs. Percival, and she was forced to let go. Dodo scampered across the lawn with Fido close at his heels.

Mrs. Percival called frantically for Dodo but to no avail. The dog had disappeared.

Herman Percival advertised high and low for Dodo, offering rewards that sounded unreasonable for a mere dog. But all efforts were futile, and Mrs. Percival mourned the disappearance as a mother mourns a lost son.

Several weeks later another bridge party was being held on the Percival grounds. The same group of players was there, but another white dog was sitting beside Mrs. Percival.

"There, Fluffy," she said tenderly and cooingly to the dog. "Sit still and watch Mumsie."

Fluffy looked meekly at her mistress and wagged her curly little tail in apparent understanding.

At the outer gate a bulldog was watching with interest. Beside him stood a small dog, once white and dainty, but now a dirty gray and unkempt. Dodo peered through the gate at the dog who had taken his place. How silly she looked with that pink ribbon. What a prude, and what a life she was leading!

Fido barked and Dodo answered immediately. The two dogs continued down the street, wagging their tails in perfect harmony and content.

Patsy Adjusts Matters

By Parke Whitney

IT is just as well that your firm has decided to pay its clerks by check hereafter, as I have never felt very safe in handing out a lot of money to the young women from your office when they called for the payroll—large payrolls are attracting thieves these days." The teller of the Merchants' National Bank smiled pleasantly at Margaret Bierne as he cashed her first check under the new office rule.

Margaret blushed. It was many a day since anyone had called her "young!" Thirty—young! It was nice of that teller, though, to think of her risk in carrying the payroll. Not many these days gave much thought to anybody except themselves. As she walked slowly homeward she felt she must be getting "mushy" to let a few considerate words from a mere business acquaintance make such an impression on her.

Life was getting terribly monotonous, just the same. The same old routine, day in and day out! How did others stand it? Wasn't it reasonable to suppose that some time or other everybody else felt the same way about it? What did they do about it? Vary the monotony by interjecting a hobby to sidetrack a rut that seemed to be getting deeper as one went along? Hadn't she done that for ten years?

Hadn't she acted as mentor, chaperon and confidante to nearly a hundred girls who had passed in and out under her supervision over a large number of girls in a mercantile house? Hadn't she given encouragement and a helping hand wherever needed? She wasn't throwing any bouquets at herself, either, when she admitted that she had done all these things.

There were little pitfalls for young working girls that they didn't always sometimes see, and she had pointed them out and kept an eye on them. No more than she ought to have done, maybe, but she had done it, and had often been misunderstood.

Just now there was a new girl—Patricia Smith. The blondest girl she had ever seen—almost too attractive for a business office. She had been with them now for almost six months, and the readiness with which she took every suggestion and correction showed her eagerness to make good. She hadn't any mother, either, poor kid! Well, just another responsibility! Maybe she'd be thanked for it, maybe not.

With Patricia's advent the inevitable had happened. Nearly every single man in the outer office had found an excuse to visit the inner office, to consult Miss Beirne on matters about which they couldn't be told a thing. Patricia Smith kept her eyes on her book at such times and raced through her letters.

"She's a level-headed little thing," thought Miss Beirne approvingly.

After dinner that night Miss Beirne found herself wondering just what might be the hobby of the good-looking teller at the Merchants. He wasn't young, but he wasn't old. Maybe his hobby was gift. He looked like a man who loved the out-of-doors. She wondered.

It rained hard the following night and she was hurrying out just behind Patsy when she noticed a green roadster, which swept the curb just as Patsy reached it, and a man's voice called out:

"Come along, kid—don't you know it's raining?"

Patsy tossed her head and kept on her way, but Miss Beirne walked up to the man. She pointed her finger at the traffic officer in the middle of the street.

"See that policeman?" she said sternly. "If ever I see you or your roaster around here again, I'll call him."

"So you're Miss Beirne! I've heard a lot about you," the young man said with a laugh, as he darted into the traffic.

The day came when Miss Beirne sadly felt it her duty to tell Patsy she had gone as far as she could get in that particular office.

"Stay here as long as you like," she told her, "but my advice is to get into an accountant's position in the banks or bonding houses, where you'll have a better future."

"As long as I work, I'm going to stay right here," said Patsy, decidedly.

"You'll be foolish if you do," remonstrated her friend, "although I'd miss you terribly if you left."

"I'm glad to hear that," said Patsy.

"Why?" asked Miss Beirne, curiously.

"Oh, just to know you like me," said Patsy rattling along on her machine.

Returning home from the public library several nights later, Miss Beirne got caught in a traffic jam just long enough to glimpse Patsy Smith in a luxurious limousine, resplendent in an evening gown of orchid velvet, with a glittering bandeau drawn low on her forehead. The attentive young man of the green roadster was with her.

It was such a shock that she lay awake half the night thinking up a way to diplomatically approach Patsy and show her the folly of being seen about with a man so evidently not of her work-a-day world.

"Patsy," she began solemnly the next morning. "I'm going to speak to you just as your mother would."

"I'm glad of that, and I hope you will be my mother some day," was the unexpected reply of Patsy. "You like my father, don't you?"

"Why, child, I don't even know your father," said the startled Miss Beirne.

"You've talked a terrible lot about him," murmured Patsy.

"I've talked to you about no man," protested Miss Beirne, indignantly, except, perhaps, that teller at the Merchants."

Patsy nodded.

"That's who I mean. He chose this office for me to demonstrate my ability to earn my own living should I ever have to. I'm to leave when my year is up and marry Bobby Burnes. 'Member the night you threatened Bobby with a policeman?" Patsy laughed. "You should have heard my father laugh when I told him about it!"

"Why didn't you tell me?" asked Miss Beirne, reproachfully, striving wildly to remember some of the things she had said to Patsy.

"I wanted you to like me for myself, and not altogether because of father. Don't worry! He talks about you the same way you talk about him."

"Roger Smith your father!"

"He's my dad," laughed Patsy.

"I admit that a man can not be flattered as easily as a woman."

William—"That depends upon whether he is married or single. It's the easiest thing in the world to flatter a married man by saying he doesn't look it."

"I told my wife that if she bobbed her hais I would leave her."

"But she bobbed it; and you're still living with her?"

"You bet I am. I'll show her she can't bluff me."

Old Ironhorse

By Margaret Taylor

THINGS in Rawlins were progressing smoothly That little cow town was the fortunate possessor of an exceptionally strong limb of the law. A fat kind-eyed man was its sheriff, and while a student in physiognomy would not have been fooled by the fat one's apparent clumsiness, many a bad hombre had stopped a bullet before realizing his mistake. Then, too, right now the sheriff had a new deputy, who, due to the fact that he had tracked and captured a gang of marauders on foot far up in the hills, had come to be known as the Walkin' Deputy. Stories of his cleverness and nerve had been broadcast up and down the country, and just at present people with questionable characters seemed to have an almost superstitious fear of Rawlins.

For this respite the sheriff would have been duly thankful if it had not been for the peculiar action of his new deputy. On the average of twice a week the Walkin' Deputy slicked down his hair, adjusted his tie and polished his boots, while the sheriff looked on with a mixture of curiosity and disgust.

"I bet you're sparkin' a gal, Johnny," he accused one night, after watching this procedure in silence several times in the vain hope of an explanation from his deputy.

"Yes, sir, I bet you're sparkin' a gal. Never did have any luck with deputies, no how. Take Ed Starks, fer instance. He went an' died with the measles. Forty-two years old he was, too. Then there was Tom Hobson—he went to New York and got jailed. It was all in the papers, and he ain't been back home since. You can see fer yerself how it is with Fred Dawson. Married to that tongue-lashin' female Matilda. Nope. I ain't never had no luck with deputies. I thought you was goin' to be different, son"—the sheriff's voice was pathetic, though his eyes twinkled—"but here you are, keepin' me all riled up stoppin' fights over that Iron Horse of yourn, while you go sparkin'."

Johnny laughed heartily, but had to admit that for a peace officer he had caused considerable disturbance of late. With well-earned reward money Johnny had purchased a flivver, which the sheriff had immediately christened the "Iron Horse." Since its arrival it had been the innocent cause of many a bloody battle, all resulting from the same friendly argument: The relative merits of the horse and the automobile—and many an unconscious victim had it carried home.

"I wish to gosh somethin' would break to bring that lad back to normal," the sheriff told old Dave Butler, and a few days later he got his wish.

Old Mark Adams rode into town, leaving a trail of dust and profanity behind him, loudly demanding the sheriff. It was Johnny, however, who heard the details of the rustling going on up in Adams' section of the country.

That night, at the appointed hour, the Walkin' Deputy departed in state, leaving behind a disappointed sheriff.

"Thought sure he'd stay in town tonight, 'count of that rustlin' business. Wonder who that gal is, anyways. He heads in Mark Adams' direction, but I can't recollect no young gal out that that-away."

About 10 o'clock the Walkin' Deputy emerged from a little white cottage far up in the hills and walked confidently over to his flivver. It was two miles farther down the trail that he felt something pressed against his back.

"You just stop that flivver, young feller," came a voice out of the darkness. "They's two of us joy ridin' in the back seat if you don't obey orders careful like. We ain't used to this buggy ridin' and we don't want no monkey shine. We knew why you been hangin' 'round that place up near old man Adams'. You sure are a pretty smart Alec, like we been hearin', but you can't fool two old duffers like us. So we just decided to let you take a permanent vacation from this land of sorrows and worries, and, whew!"

Johnny's active brain had taken in the situation quickly. These fellows thought he knew something and had already decided to dispose of him. Well, he had one chance—

Sliding far down in the seat, with a quick movement he stepped hard on the gas, sending the Iron Horse forward with a mighty jerk, straight toward the roughest section of country in that section.

Threats, curses, prayers, moans came from the back seat, while Johnny hung on to the wheel, praying all the while that the car would hold together.

"When you got enough just throw them guns out," he ordered over his shoulder, "and sit up straight and pretty, or I'll make this thing do tricks Henry Ford never taught it."

"Them guns is gone," came a shaky voice from the rear seat. Then the voice rose to a wail. "For the love of Mike, stop this crazy rattle-trap."

"All right, you joy riders," called Johnny. "Just remember there's more gas in this thing and, anyways, I got you covered now."

A few nights later the Walkin' Deputy and the Iron Horse, the latter not looking any the worse for its encounter with the rustlers, took their usual trail out of town.

"'Tain't right to follow a gent when he goes to see his gal," remarked the sheriff to a couple of cow punchers who had been watching the Iron Horse out of sight. They looked at each other a moment, then with one accord each man went for his horse.

Later three men came in sight of a flivver outlined in the moonlight against a white cottage. They dismounted and peaked through a window. What they saw was the Walkin' Deputy deeply interested in a game of checkers. Opposite him sat a little old lady, her gray hair shining in the lamplight.

"Gosh!" breathed the sheriff. Three men mounted and silently rode away.

Why?

"You'll be quite safe along here, madam," said the guard, leading the old lady up the platform. "It's the front car that's the most dangerous."

"The front one?" said the old lady.

"Yes, madam."

"Then, why do you have it?"

What It Means

By Phil Moore

THE boy's face wore an expression of fear as he was ushered into the office of Mr. Winthrop Madison, known in secret whispers as "the boss."

"Close the door and sit down."

The boy complied and, his shoulders huddled awkwardly forward, sank into a chair.

During the next few moments, in which the man went on with his work, Dan looked about the room and took in its scattered adornments. Outwardly he did his best to appear calm, but panic raged in his breast. He was afraid and he knew it.

There was a small picture hanging near the desk. It was a blue and gray painting of a ship ready to put out to sea. Dan's eyes, perusing it, gathered in its every detail. Something took strong root in him. A desire to run away. Yes, if he were discharged with shame forever ingrained in his name, he would run away to sea. He would become a sailor—a person who didn't have to waste his life in a dirty, noisy office with ill-tempered humans eternally screaming orders in his face. Oh, for a taste of the healthful salt sea breezes blowing on his cheeks! How wonderful to be tall and big and bronzed like the hardy seamen!

A sense of nausea overwhelmed him. Ugh! how he hated this place.

But to be dishonorably discharged! What would his mother say? What would Marie say—the pretty little kid with the long curls that stuck out of her hat in a way that made him want to cut one off.

His thoughts halted with a jerk as the portly figure, swinging 'round in his chair abruptly, looked him full in the face.

"Of course you know what you are here for!"

"Yes, sir."

"And do you know what it means to steal a ten dollar bill from the firm which employs you?"

"Losing my job," said Dan simply, but with a growing hatred of this person who questioned him so severely.

"Not alone that!" thundered Mr. Madison. "It means that once established, your present reputation will stand in the way of any future job you might want. It will perhaps haunt you for the rest of your days, following you wherever you go, making your life a total failure."

A quick gasp escaped the boy's lips and was instantly stifled.

"How old are you, Daniel?"

"Seventeen, sir." The reply was a bit tremulous.

"You're old enough to understand what such a stigma means, are you not?"

"Y-yes, sir, I am."

The severity of the man's gaze was unrelenting.

"You also know that your mother, who depends largely on your earnings will undoubtedly be stricken by the blow."

Oh, why, why did he go on like this? And why did he remind him of his mother who, Dan was poignantly conscious, loved him?

Suddenly he sat up straight. Somewhere he had read of a woman whose life was spoiled because a man—her son—had not turned out as she had hoped. Then, too, there was Marie. She might shun him forever if she learned the truth. How hard a thing life was!

A cord had suddenly snapped in him. Eagerly his eyes swept the older man's features for signs of leniency.

"I want to tell you about a boy I once knew," said Mr. Madison, taking from his drawer a brown photograph and laying it, face in full view, on the desk. Looking down, Dan was aware of a sweet, refined mouth and eyes which gazed smilingly out from under heavily fringed lashes. He noticed the hair. Curls, like Marie's, drawn back into a loose knot.

"He was office boy for a firm, as you are," Mr. Madison continued. "There were chances for advancement, and he realized it. But one day he forgot himself and did a very low, despicable thing. He stole a precious jewelled necklace. For months he concealed the truth, at first intent on keeping the necklace; later assailed with fear lest his confession bring him serious punishment.

"For a long time that boy lived in a world of misery and unrest. He became terribly afraid and alternately contemplated suicide and running away. Then one day they discovered him."

Daniel's pulses mounted rapidly.

The company's superintendent favored imprisonment for the boy, because it had been his daughter's necklace. The other officials of the concern approved the plan. "Imprisonment—" Daniel, listening intently, detected something bitter in the pause that ensued.

"Do you understand what that would have meant, boy?—A whole life wasted! A memory of pain—of agony. A living death! But—" here his voice waxed a trifle softer—"he was spared the ordeal, spared it because she interfered—his daughter." Here two pairs of eyes fell simultaneously on the picture that smiled at them. "She was kind and understood. In time the crime and the hurt were forgotten, and the boy became a man of high position and ideals—because of her. Later he married her."

The beads of perspiration stood out on Dan's forehead.

"To spare you untold suffering I have cited this case," Mr. Madison went on. "Many of us sin in our youth, and when we are not forgiven our lives become horrible nightmares. You are young and can live this down. Perhaps some day, Daniel, you will profit by so great a mistake and rise to the success of the other boy. Go, now."

Wondering, but glad at heart, the boy went. How could he know that in those last tense moments he had listened to an extract from the man's own life, and that, as Mr. Madison sat alone in the office, tears were dropping fast upon the picture of the woman he had married—the woman who had saved him as he now was saving Dan?

"What became of the ventriloquist you used to have?"

Circus Manager—"Oh, he found he could make more money selling parrots."

"The boy caught a sparrow. What case is 'sparrow'?"

Small Boy—"Objective case."

Master—"Why?"

Small Boy—"Because the sparrow objected to being caught."

Player's Status Will Be Discussed

New Wilmington School Board To Meet Tonight To Consider Situation

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Feb. 6.—Because of an infringement o the rules governing the use of the local high school gymnasium, two of the high school students, who are also stars on the basketball team, were forbidden to use the "gym" as students of the New Wilmington school. As a result, these two Howard Eagleson and Thomas Hutchison, were not allowed to participate in the New Wilmington-Bethany game played Saturday night.

This ruling made by the school board has aroused considerable comment in the school and town. And because of this comment and the action taken by the high school students who drew up a petition which asks leniency toward the two players, the school board is to meet in a special session again tonight to discuss the case.

For the privilege of issuing notes the Bank of England pays the British government $900,000 a year, plus a percentage of certain profits.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McKee's Kut Rate Store, Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Seeks Volunteers To Read To Little Lad

Phillip is such a little tike. For two years he has been at the Shenango Valley hospital, a hopeless cripple. But under the kindly tutelage of Dr. William Wallace he has learned to walk, after a fashion. And that pleased him immensely, for he could visit the other patients and his own case did not seem quite so hopeless, even to him.

But the other day grim tragedy stalked into the hospital. Phillip fell and broke his arm. Now he is confined to his bed again, with almost nothing to occupy his time.

As he has never gone to school, Phillip has not learned to read. No, he can only look at the pictures in the books, which he presents to every visitor, even the nurses, and pleads pitifully for a story.

"Yes," he said to Miss Alice Sterling the other day when she made her weekly visit to the hospital, "I like books, but no one will read to me."

And so Miss Sterling is asking for volunteers; for someone to read to the boy, or for someone to teach him to read. She will be glad to discuss Phillip with anyone who will call her at the library or at her home.

Hundreds Honor Late Governor

Hundreds Pay Tribute To Late Governor Pothier Of Rhode Island

(International News Service)

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Feb. 6.—Hundreds called at the home of Governor Abram J. Pothier today to pay their respects to the man who served Rhode Island seven terms as chief executive.

Lieut. Gov. Norman S. Case automatically became governor with the death of Governor Pothier in his 74th year.

Unwashed For Years; Will Bathe Liberty

Famous Lady Of Freedom Will Get Bath In Spring If Plans Materialize

Unwashed except by rain and the salt spray from the ocean, the Statue of Liberty which has guarded the entrance to the new world for more than 40 years will receive a spring bath this year, if plans which are now being made materialize. It has been suggested to the war department that as Liberty is streaked from torch to base with incrustations of dirt due to weather, smoke and climatic conditions, that the statue be cleaned.

It is realized that the natural beauty of the statue, the creation of Frederic August Bartholdi and a gift from the French school children to those of United States, could be restored by washing Liberty with a soap in form of minute beads which dissolve instantly on contact with water to form a super suds. This would remove all the dirt, but in no way affect the natural weather-green of the bronze which forms the chief beauty of the statue.

From the tip of the torch to the foundation of the pedestal is a distance of 305 feet, and from the top of her head to her heels, she stands 111 feet. The manicuring of her nails alone will be somewhat of a task, as each of them are 13 inches by 10, or the size of a metropolitan telephone book.

The task of washing Liberty is now being studied by Col. Alexander Williams of the war department, who is in charge of the statue.

Many shows, nowadays, are advertised as "cabaret," yet, strictly speaking, most of them have no claim to the title at all. A "cabaret" means a small room—a private room as opposed to a hall. So the first cabaret shows were the performances of entertainers hired specially for some private party.

Clement XIV., by reason of his wide sympathies and toleration of diverging views, has been called the "Protestant Pope".

Martin Enters Race For State Treasurer

Auditor General Is Candidate For Republican Party Nomination

EDWARD MARTIN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 6.—Edward Martin, auditor general of Pennsylvania, today formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state treasurer.

Auditor General Martin, who has been prominent in public life for a long period, stated he was asking for the nomination on his record as a citizen and official. When asked to state his platform, he said:

"I have always believed in sane, efficient and economic government and if nominated and elected will do all in my power to carry out these policies."

General Martin was elected auditor general in 1924 after having been identified with the Republican party of Pennsylvania since he was a voter. Active in its affairs, he served as secretary and chairman of his county committee and for ten years as a member of the state committee. For a number of years his ability as a speaker has caused him to be called upon by both the national and state committees in their campaigns.

For 30 years General Martin has served his state and nation as a soldier. As a youth, he enlisted in the ranks of the famous old "Fighting Tenth" and went with that command to the Philippines during the Spanish-American war. As an officer, General Martin went to France during the World war where he saw service on the lines with the 110th infantry, being wounded and decorated for gallantry in action. He now commands the 55th infantry brigade of the 28th division, which won the title of "Iron Men" in the World war.

General Martin is an attorney-at-law but for several years has devoted much of his time to business interests. He is a member of the Presbyterian church and of many veterans' organizations.

Evangelist Crill Gives Illustrated Talk To Children

Large crowds featured the services on Sunday at the revival meeting in the First Free Methodist church.

At the close of the study period of the Sunday school Evangelist A. G. Crill gave his illustrated address on the "Breaking of the Commandments". After which about fifty children presented themselves at the alter of prayer.

Rev. Crill preached to a crowded house last night from 2 Chro. 15:2; "The Lord is with you, while ye be with him; and if ye seek him, he will be found of you; but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you."

Three leading thoughts were scripturally and forcefully emphasized.

First, God stays with those who stay with him. Secondly, Earnest seekers always find God. And thirdly, if we forsake God, he will forsake us.

The revival services will continue all the week.

Guard Children In Coal Regions

Machine Gun Is Planted To Preserve Order In Mine Region

MORE STATE POLICE ON PATROL DUTY

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 6.—Peace and quiet reigned in the Western Pennsylvania bituminous coal field today, with the district in which a riot broke out last week patrolled by state police.

State authorities are taking no chances of finding themselves unprepared to surpress further outbreaks. Additional state police have been ordered to the Curry and Bruceton regions from the Butler barracks.

Capt. J. C. Mauk has completed his investigation of last week's warfare for Gov. John S. Fisher. He has returned to Butler barracks to study evidence adduced at his probe of conditions and to prepare his report to the state executive.

Likewise, county detectives and the sheriff have completed their investigation, but thus far no arrests have resulted. They appeared to be awaiting the action of Captain Mauk, before taking any steps themselves.

The sheriff has provided men and a machine gun to guard the 300 children who attend the school at Curry which was fired upon last week during a riot. The school was to be reopened today.

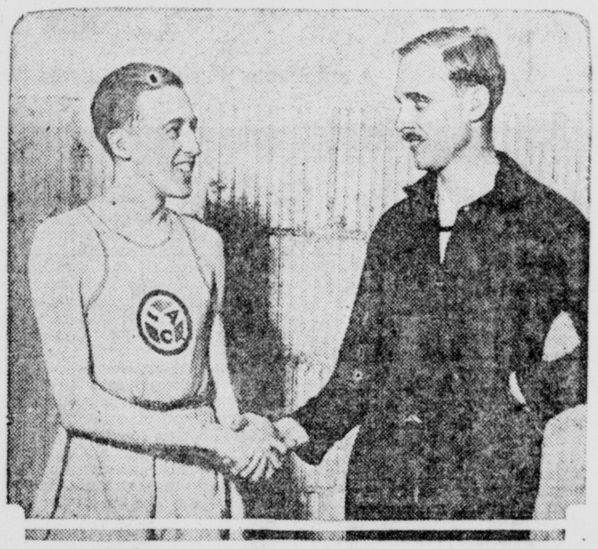

Two deputy sheriffs and three state troopers mounted guard in the schoolyard. As they did so, there appeared on the scene a coal and iron policeman, a fellow officer of the man who is alleged to have hired snipers at $25 each.

The company officer remained across the road from the schoolhouse on the property of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation which he is assigned to guard.

There was no trouble as the children straggled into school. They were visibly excited and annoyed by the experience of going to school under the protection of a machine gun.

Captain Mauk's report, it was learned, will be submitted to Maj. Lynn Adams of the state police, in Harrisburg. No part of it will be made public prior to that time, nor was the state police captain willing to discuss the situation now.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 6.—Companies furnishing rural electric service in Pennsylvania spent $3,000,000 in line and plant extensions during the past year, according to reports compiled by the public service commission. The commission estimates that more than 17,000 rural consumers have been benefited by these extensions.

During the year the commission handled 567 requests for electric service and facilities. Eighty-one per cent of that number pertained to rural service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Postal receipts at 50 selected cities totaled $30,579,429.89 in January, as compared with $30,394,024.30 in January a year ago, the Post Office department announced today.

The three leading cities in percentage of gain were: Memphis, 39.90 per cent; Newark, N. J., 10.63 per cent; Forth Worth, Tex., 9.44.

Scotland's smallest school, in point of attendance, is in the little Highland village of Lochgair. There are only five pupils and as they are of different ages the teacher has to teach three of them separately, thus making in all four classes.

The Epic Of Beecher's Island—VI
Phantoms Of The Dawn

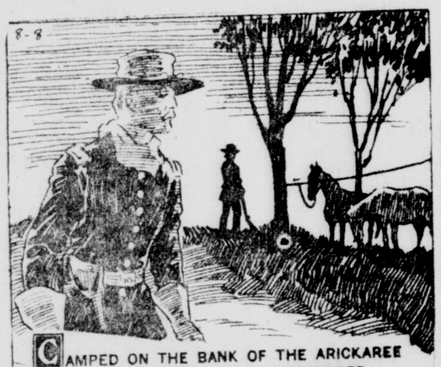

THE SHOT AND THE YELLS INSTANTLY AWAKENED ALL THE SCOUTS. THEY HAD SLEPT FULLY CLAD, AND IN A FLASH THEY WERE UP, HAD SEIZED THEIR WEAPONS AND SADDLES, AND WERE RUNNING TOWARD THE TREES WHERE THEIR HORSES WERE TETHERED.

AS THE SHARP REPORT OF FORSYTH'S PISTOL BROKE THE STILLNESS, A DOZEN SHADOWY FORMS ROSE FROM THE TALL GRASS AND LIKE LEAPING PHANTOMS ADVANCED WITH WILD YELLS AND SCREECHES UPON THE PICKET LINE TO STAMPEDE THE HORSES OF THE SCOUTS.

THE FIRST GLOW OF THE COMING DAY HAD BEGUN TO APPEAR IN THE EAST WHEN FORSYTH SAW THE WAR BONNET OF AN INDIAN SUDDENLY RISE INTO VIEW, SILHOUETTED AGAINST THE SKY. WHIPPING OUT HIS REVOLVER, FORSYTH FIRED, AND THE FEATHERED HEADGEAR DROPPED OUT OF SIGHT.

CAMPED ON THE BANK OF THE ARICKAREE IN EASTERN COLORADO (MID-SEPTEMBER, 1868) "SANDY" FORSYTH SPENT A WAKEFUL NIGHT VISITING HIS SENTRIES, WHILE MOST OF HIS COMPANY OF SCOUTS, EXHAUSTED BY THE LONG, FORCED MARCH OF THE DAY BEFORE, SLEPT SOUNDLY. FORSYTH KNEW THE WAR PARTY OF INDIANS HE WAS PURSUING WAS NOT FAR OFF.

Simmons To Battle O'Connell Here Tonight

Light-Heavies To Fight Six Rounds

Elmo The Mighty To Meet Jack Fink In Second Prelim

RIO, MINTEER, ACONIE AND RADACY ON CARD

Procrastination, a thief of time, has ruined the career of many young men in athletics, such as football, baseball, tennis, basketball and boxing, and they awakened only in time to see the tail-end of the parade pass by, but in the lives of Jack O'Connell and Stanley Simmons, light-heavies, who clash here tonight, the thief of time has not been allowed to get the rail in their race toward fame and glory.

The two youngsters have been prominently identified with sports, Simmons in a general though not a spectacular manner, while Jack was a noted gridder, having been a substitute halfback on the Notre Dame football eleven. Simmons has shown 100 per cent more promise in boxing than in any of the other sports, while O'Connell's boxing, so far, has been as spectacular as his carrying the ball for Notre Dame's eleven.

Gruelling Battle

Recently the light-heavyweights battled in the semi-final to the Emmett Rocco-George Gemas bout at Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh, and glowing accounts were penned after the battle, and should the same kind of a bout be staged at the Old Armory tonight, there'll be few regrets at having stolen time away to watch the light-heavyweights feint, draw their opponent into a lead for a counter, or the jabs, hooks, crosses and uppercuts that make life merry for the fans.

Frankie Rio and Al Radacy, featherweights, will clash in the semi-final of six rounds. Rio is a chap from Cleveland and Radacy hails from Braddock. Each scored knockouts, and no doubt their battle will be a gruelling fistic chapter.

Elmo Meets Fink

Elmo the Mighty, South Side, and Jack Fink, East Brook, light-heavyweights, clash in the second six-round preliminary. Elmo clownend his way to recognition when he defeated Joe White and Fink immediately fired a challenge which will result in action.

The first bout of six rounds will be fought by Roy Minteer, this city, against Tonie Aconie of New Castle. Minteer was to have fought Scotty McLarnin, but the latter has been taken ill, according to reports, and Aconie has been substituted in his place.

The bouts start at 8:15. The officials will not be named until the deputy boxing commissioners arrive here at three o'clock.

New Wilmington Defeats Bethany

College Town High School Defeats West Virginian's In Good Game

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Feb. 6.—Though crippled by the sudden loss of two of its stars, the New Wilmington high school floor team "carried on" to win a 27-22 victory from the championship Bethany, W. Va., five here Saturday evening. The contest, which was featured by the almost perfect play of the patched-up college town quintet, was easily the most brilliant basketball performance that has been seen in the local gym this season.

New Wilmington scored first early in the initial period, but were soon overhauled by the Bethany team. During the whole of the first half the score wavered back and forth with the college town players keeping an edge. At the end of the first half New Wilmington was leading by a 12-11 margin.

In the second half the play was again fast, but the college town team, through the "sharp-shooting" of Herriott and Newton, again kept ahead of the West Virginia floor men. However, there was no sure "dope" in favor of a victory for either team until the finel whistle ended the game.

The only defect in the New Wilmington team was its inability to find the basket in shooting fouls. The strangeness of the gymnasium probably contributed to the downfall of the Ohio Valley champions. Like Coach Lawther's championship Westminster team, the little local high players Saturday night showed themselves to be a team of stars who played for the team alone.

The lineup:

| New Wilmington. | Goals | Fouls | To'l |
|---|---|---|---|
| Hartwell, F | 1 | 0- 0 | 2 |
| Patterson, F | 3 | 0- 0 | 6 |

BENNY BASS TO BOX TONY CANZONERI FRIDAY

Benny Bass and Tony Canzoneri, featherweights, will decide the disputed championship, Friday, in a 15 round bout at New York. The N. B. A. favors Bass as the champion and Canzoneri is the outstanding challenger.

New Brighton Here Tuesday

New Castle High Floor Team To Play New Brighton High Here Tuesday

New Castle High Girls To Play Farrell High In Preliminary Game

New Castle high school basketball team with eight victories and no defeats in Section III, will play New Brighton high at the senior high court on Tuesday night. The New Castle girls will play Farrell in the preliminary at 7:15 o'clock.

It will be recalled that New Brighton high recently held the New Castle team to a 21 to 20 victory at New Brighton in an extra five-minute period battle and that the valley boys played the best game of the year against the red and black.

Tomorrow night on the senior high floor the locals appear to have the edge, and they will try to prove that the game at New Brighton was an "off night". It is true, however, that the Heider coached team unloosened a powerful attack against the locals and had the game won up until the last minute of play.

The New Castle high maidens were defeated in their recent game at Farrell and they are out to avenge this setback tomorrow night. The local lassies have a mighty fine team this year and have lost but very few games.

Benefit Game At Y. M. C. A. Floor Wednesday Night

Walter E. Kirker, physical director of the Y. M. C. A. announced today that on Wednesday night there would be two benefit games at the "Y" court. The first game will start at 8 o'clock.

The first game will be between the China girls of the Shenango Pottery and the Castle Five maidens. The main go will be between the High School Reserves and a picked team from the city league, of boys under 22 years of age.

The idea of the game is to derive funds for the sending of Y. M. C. A. teams to the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., Pittsburgh for competition with other Y. M. C. A. teams in the anual torney games. The admission to the games Wednesday will be 25 cents.

Floor Notes

The House of Savoia League has been dissolved, according to word from Sebastian Isabella today. The dissolution took place recently at a meeting of Commissioners, Diana, DiThomas and Casalandra, with Isabella, and all of the league players. The reason assigned for the breaking up of the league is complications. The Savoia Juniors will play the preliminary games at the Savoia gym. On Friday night the Juniors will meet the East Side Buccaneers in the preliminary game to the big Booster Day program.

The Liberty Five, one of the fastest junior teams in the city would like to schedule games. The Liberty Five has had a hard time to book games this year. All junior teams of the city or county desiring games are asked to get in touch with Manager Tony Tino at 605 East Long avenue, or by calling 4843-M between 6 and 7 o'clock. The Liberty Five will meet the B. & O. team tonight in the first game of the second-half of the City League at the Y. M. C. A.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN

A fine epitaph that could be written on the monument above the grave of Hughie Jennings would read something like this:

"He helped make the game's greatest player—by letting him make himself."

And there would be food for thought in such a tribute.

When Ty Cobb joined the Detroit Tigers over 22 years ago, he was young, fiery tempered, headstrong and full of confidence in his ability to make the grade. He chafed under interference.

Cobb has realized, since he reached the peak, that Hughie's tact and full appreciation of the boy's temperament and his spirit left Cobb unhampered in his desire to make himself the game's super-player.

First of all Jennings found that Cobb had amazing speed and daring on the bases. Early in Ty's career Cobb misjudged his own speed and was nipped stealing. Jennings made no effort to "call him" or hold the Georgian under orders.

Cobb displayed the same speed afield. Jennings gave him time to find himself there. Hits back of second were turned into extra base blows at times because of Cobb's eagerness to take a chance on fielding them before they landed instead of playing them safe. Jennings permitted the youth to learn in his own way the advisability of being content at times to hold the hit to a single.

As Cobb found himself and forged to the front, Jennings, because of his apparent hesitation to direct Cobb as he did other youngsters, came in for criticism. In later years the knockers even told you that Cobb, and not Jennings, was running the team.

What few persons know, however, is the amount of time—the hours of baseball talk—the two spent together off the field. In the seclusion of Cobb's room, or Jennings', they discussed all phases of the game. Jennings gave Cobb valuable suggestions regarding his play. Together they planned plays which would increase Cobb's value to the team in view of his intrepid daring and speed.

On the other hand, had Jennings preferred to dominate Cobb the possible result is fearful to contemplate. Jennings was raised in the old school where "fight" on the diamond wasn't confined to college cheers.

Jennings' effort to curb Cobb's spirits—to turn him into a routine ball player—would have resulted in warfare and one or two other eventualities. Either Cobb would have been subdued and his contributions to the development of baseball lost to the game, or he would have moved to other fields.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

The gentleman caricatured is Mr. I. Heardit, a young man with a rare sense of hearing. His ears are as sensitive as those of an army mule. He can head what is said behind closed doors and distance is nothing. Not so long ago a certain official sponsored a secret conference but Mr. Heardit knows all about it. The public can expect some "hot news" in regard to the police department.

Big men are easy to interview and they never fail to tell the public what the people are entitled to know. There are other men who mean well but make the mistake of trying to hide the facts away from the newspapers which acts as a medium between the office-holder and the public. And then again there are some men who refuse to be interviewed. That is why some reporters are "nebby."

A-hem! Jonathan Doubt and Hearless Brown, the gay dogs who deceive their wives are at it again and they put it over on their wives today, Jonathan Doubt rushed into Brown's house and threatened to sue Mrs. Brown for defamation of character, because she termed him a hypocrite. Mrs. Brown denied writing the letter but Jonathan adopted the attitude of an abused citizen and departed, vowing he would seek legal redress.

While Jonathan was putting on the act, Hearless Brown visited the Doubt home and emphatically told Mrs. Doubt that "I may have a dirty neck on account of my overcoat collar but you can't call be a rough neck. I demand a written apology. Mrs. Doubt hurriedly penned the apology, but Hearless gave her the air and rushed from the residence shouting: "I'll have the law on you for this terrible slander."

There is a girl in our town
Who thinks she's wond'rous wise,
Because her big fat Coffee Man
Has naught for her but eyes.

So Fur Coat Antoinette, the girl with the dimple and the dancing eyes will soon have the poor devil hog-tied.

Two weeks later she'll tell him he ought to know his Brazilian Beans and go boil the coffee.

He'll put the pot on the stove and while he is shaving the pot will boil over.

This will give Antoinette grounds for divorce and she will also sue for alimony.

Being a big jovial Coffee Man he will not want to appear in open divorce court and confesses he didn't know his coffee and it looks as though Antoinette will get that big car after all but the Coffee Man won't get a ride for his money.

Speaker Signs With Athletics

Report Tris Speaker Signs With Philadelphia Americans For $35,000

WILL BE GREAT OUTFIELD AID

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Daddy Tris Speaker, has gone a-hunting and brought home approximately $35,000 worth of bacon.

That is the salary which experts today estimated the veteran outfielder will draw from the Philadelphia Athletics, with whom he came to terms yesterday. Speaker is understood to have received $45,000 from Washington last season, and was released by the Senators last week after declining to take a voluntary salary reduction of considerable proportions. It is a fur-lined cinch that Connie Mack will pay him more than Clark Griffith offered him for 1928.

With "Spoke" in center, Mr. McGillicuddy is assured of an outfield at least as strong as last year's, when Tyrus Cobb roamed the out gardens in Slowtown. And the Gray Eagle will provide a drawing card lost recently when Cobb refused to take a cut in salary and left the A's flat.

Two Games In City League At "Y" Court

Two fast games are on tap tonight for followers of the City league. The league will start tonight their race for the championship of the City league.

The Liberty Five will meet the B. and O. and the Marshalls will tackle the Penn-State team.

With the Overlands out of the league for the second half the competition will be much keener and many good games are being anticipated.

The Shamrocks held a lead of 16 to 12 at the end of the first half. A. Mehalic was the best bet for the Shamrocks with four baskets, while Eagleson was high scorer for the Electrics.

More Tributes Given To Westminster Team

In a resume of the high spots of the past week in the sporting world of Western Pennsylvania, Max E. Hannum, a sport writer on a Pittsburgh newspaper has the following to say of the Westminster basketball team this season:

Another Brilliant Basketball Team

The University of Pittsburgh basketball team has attracted so much attention, both nationally and locally, this season that some fans may have forgotten that this district boasts another extraordinary quintet in the Westminster college passers. That fact was brought home rather forcibly last Tuesday evening, when the Lawther-coached machine handed Duquesne university's team its worst defeat in many seasons, showing a mastery of the game in all its branches.

Blessed with splendid individual material, tall and rangy boys who have been thoroughly grounded in the rudiments of the game through several seasons of experience, Mr. Lawther has his aggregation functioning in perfect style. The tri-state conference championship is the main goal of the Westminster team this season, and if Tuesday's play is a criterion of the club's real ability nothing in that body will bar its path to the title.

Duquesne has a team that is in the process of reorganization this year, but even at that it takes a pretty classy aggregation to down the Bluffmen by 25 points, and give the impression that more could be scored under pressure.

College Deserves A Good Campaign

Westminster deserves success, if for no other reason than the New Wilmington institution plays fair in the matter of eligibility rules and such matters. Men with sane policies are at the reins there, and the faculty takes a wholesome interest in athletics. Graduate Manager Andy McDonald is a square-shooter, and such men as Lawther, and Dwight Beede, the football coach, are a credit to the coaching profession in general, and to the sports they direct in particular.

As to the boys who compose the regular Westminster array, four of them are native Pennsylvanians, and one comes from New Jersey. The Pittsburgh district is prominently by "Babe" O'Donovan, Homestead flash, and brother of Roy, who won fame at Duquesne recently. "Babe" is making a name for himself in his own right, evidently being determined not to bask in the reflected glory of his well-known brother.

Ken Delahunty, heavy scoring forward, comes from Iselin, Pa., and pairs with O'Donovan to make an exceptionally effective duet of offensive players.

Connor Made Over Into a Pivot Man

"Sparky" Connor, the only "foreigner" on the first string, is the New Jersey lad, claiming Union City at his home. He won a place as all-conference forward last season, but has fitted in perfectly with Lawther's plans at center this campaign.

Charles Ayers is Canonsburg's contribution to the team, and he and Capt. Tudor Lewis of Farrell, Pa., take care of the guard positions. Capable substitutes, many of whom would doubtless be filling regular berths on other college teams, give Westminster a squad that is well-rounded, and perhaps the second best in western Pennsylvania.

There are some who say Pitt would have had a time of it with the United Presbyterians on Tuesday.

Rickard Likely To Take Big Bout From Metropolis

Next Dempsey-Tunney Bout Will Not Be Held In New York Says Rickard

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—If there is to be a third episode of the Dempsey-Tunney serial, and the betting seems to be 7-10, even and out that it can't miss, it will be held as far as possible from the jurisdiction of the frowning fathers of New York boxing, the writer was informed at Madison Square Garden, New York, it seems, is to get the class AA championship fight between Tunney and the Sharkey-Delaney-Heeney-Risko survivors in June in order to pander to political insistence that Rickard hold his next heavyweight championship in the town where he does his ordinary business.

Once this feature is accomplished at neither great expense nor gain, Rickard will look elsewhere for the big clean up with Dempsey and Tunney, it was stated.

This, if true, is just a reversal of his original compromise with Tunney which called for the champion and Dempsey to make their killing as early as possible so that Tunney could discharge an alleged obligation by boxing a second time in defense of his title, with Jim Mullen as the promoter. Dempsey, however, upset the sequence by declaring himself out of any fight that might be held as early as June or July.

Football Rules Committee In Session Today

Expect Few Changes In Rules For Football Season Of 1928

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Having retreated in good order for two days to a spot where "one can be alone and faith renew," the football rules committee this afternoon will report whether to encourage lateral drop kicking or to make the new football look like a pocket flash in order to discourage fumbling. To be consistent, it should do one or the other or both.

Last year, it decided that the defensive side could not advance with a ball that was recovered after a muffed punt but could do so, provided the muff was a fumble; it took the goal posts off the goal line, declared that a lateral pass, if fumbled, belonged to the attacking side, at the point where fumbled, regardless of who recovered it, and reduced the shifts to a problem for a stop watch. The new rules for 1927, therefore, were four in number only three of them were slightly fatuous.

The prevailing idea today was that officials next fall still would be trying to determine whether a muff was a fumble, meantime busying themselves with the detail of counting "one-two" with ever shifting team. The goal posts, too, they say, will remain on the end zone.

Enon Five Wins Over Waterford

(Special To The News)

ENON VALLEY, Feb. 6.—The New Waterford, Ohio Spades, invaded Enon Valley Saturday night with the intention of avenging the defeat they suffered at the hands of the local Odd Fellows' five last week.

The local quintet jumped into an early lead with Jack Zeh, Riddle and Andrews scoring almost at will. They displayed a fast sure offensive which the Spades were unable to cope with and on the defensive Russell, Shaffer and Albright played stellar basketball.

Twice the visiting team staged rallies but were unable to score with any great amount of success.

The final score was 38-13.

COMMISSION ACTS TO PREVENT "RASPBERRY"

The State Athletic commission has ruled that announcers in calling decisions are not to credit the judges making them to prevent "tazzing." In this new method the man who is right will have to share the blunt with the one who is wrong and in a split the referee decides.

Rochester Team Wins Over Locals With Score Of 22 To 21 Saturday

Girls' Team Loses To Rochester Lassies With Score Of 27 To 29

(By TONY PASTA.)

ELLWOOD CITY, Feb. 6.—Ellwood City basketeers dropped a double bill when they traveled to Rochester Saturday night. The girls lost 29 to 27 and the boys 22 to 21. Both contests were interesting and furnished an abundance of thrill for the fans.

Coach Lee's passers kept the lead until the last few minutes of play when the valley lads interrupted the blue and white's progress and anexed enough to nose out the Tubers.

MacMurdo was a lion on the defense and was a continual menace to the winners. Justine and King led the scoring and were accountable for most of Ellwood's points. No subs were used as the main teams played the entire contest.

On the other hand an equally intersting contest took place with the girls clashed in the opening play. The Rochester maidens led until the last quarter when Captain Ross tied the score, the count being 27-27. Two fouls, both of which were sunk, gained the victory for the valley sextette.

Coach Sara McGoun's passers fought up hill the entire play and were highly complimented on the fighting spirit which kept them from an overwhelming defeat.

Two games will be played this week the first Tuesday night when Lee's cagers travel to Mars and on Friday night they clash with New Brighton on their home floor.

Leechburg High Angles For Lee

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Feb. 6. — According to an article in a Pittsburgh Sunday paper, Coach—"Peck" Lee of Ellwood City High is sought by Leechburg High and there is a possibility that the local school may lose their football coach.

The Leechburg officials would not say definitely whether or not Lee had signed on the dotted line. Lee has been coach of the local school for the past number of years and in 1925 gave Ellwood City a W. P. I. A. L championship football team.

The Ice Whirlwind — By Feg Murray

A flash of steel blades—a figure flying down the frozen surface of the rink—a bit of clever skating and stick handling that gets him by the defense, a feint as though to shoot to one corner of the goal, and smash! Howie Morenz has hurtled the puck into the other side of the net for a goal, and now goes skating gracefully back to his position amid the applause of the multitude.

What a streak of lightning he is on the ice! Skates like a thunderbolt launched by Zeus, and strikes twice as accurately, and more nearly in the same place! In the all-star team for 1926-27 selected by the managers of the ten National Hockey league clubs, Morenz received eight votes for center, more than any other player at any position. Combined with Joliat and Gagne, he forms an almost unbeatable combination, the greatest front line in hockey today—or any day, for that matter. Howie Morenz, however, is the main cog in this remarkable triumvirate, the brightest star of the fast-flying Canadiens of Montreal.

Being unanimously chosen as the greatest offensive threat in the N. H. L. is no slight honor, yet few would have any other choice than Howie this season, because of his scintillating work. He never seems to tire or slow up, he shoots without getting set, and is almost as valuable on defense, being a star at poke and sweep checking, and all the other intricacies of this exciting game.

Feg Murray Says—

Joe Dundee, famous Italian prize-fighter, decided to go on the stage. "Now Mr. Dundee," said the director, "let's see you put some mock-irony into this!" "Mock-irony? Mock-irony?" replied the mystified champion. Then over his puzzled pan spread a look of recognition. "Oh, soor! I getcha! I putta lotta macaroni ina dees!"

CARDS' HOPE 1928 IS YEAR OF THEIR "COME-BACK"

On the condition and ability this year of these five St. Louis players much of the Cards' hope for a pennant next fall depends. The 1926 champs from Missouri were just a dire threat to the Pirates in last season's race, but they hope to do better than that this summer.

Sportraits

LARRY NABHOLTZ.

Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland golf professional, has at last reached the heights he long has threatened to gain. This happened when he nosed out MacDonald Smith for the ElPaso open title.

The win was Nabholtz's first in such noted company as he faced on the Texas links. Last year he finished second in the Texas open, which meet was taken by Bobby Cruikshank. Now it begins to look as though Larry's erstwhile erratic game has settled down and he has become a dangerous factor in any future open meets.

AN ORDINANCE

Prohibiting parking of automobiles and other vehicles on the streets and highways of the City between the hours of 1:00 o'clock A. M. and 6:00 o'clock A. M. and for the removal by officers of the City of all cars parked in violation of this Ordinance, at the expense of the owners thereof, and providing further penalties for the violation of this Ordinance.

WHEREAS, because of the narrow and congested condition of the streets of the City of New Castle, it is impossible for the Street Department to keep the said streets cleaned in the daytime and that it is, therefore, necessary to clean the said streets at night and so to have all automobiles removed from the said streets from 1:00 o'clock A. M. to 6:00 o'clock A. M. each day to allow the Street Department free access to the said streets and highways in its work, and,

WHEREAS, a great many persons have formed a dangerous practice of allowing their automobiles to be parked in the streets of the City of New Castle throughout the night and from night to night, and many strangers coming into the City allow their automobiles to remain in the streets over night so that the streets have been rendered dangerous to public travel, and,

WHEREAS, many crimes have been committed in the past year by persons who have used automobiles parked in the streets during the night as a cover for their operations, and the parking of automobiles in the streets during the night hours has become a dangerous and far too prevalent practice.

SECTION 1. NOW, THEREFORE, be it ordained and enacted by the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa., that it shall hereafter be unlawful for any person to park any automobile or other vehicle on any street or highway of the City of New Castle between the hours of 1:00 o'clock A. M. and 6:00 o'clock A. M. on any day, without a special permit issued by the Mayor and approved by the Superintendent of the Department of Streets and Highways.

SECTION 2. If anyone who shall desire to hold any entertainment or public gathering or who, on account of sickness, weather conditions, building operations or other unusual circumstances, shall apply to the Mayor for such a permit, the Mayor may grant a temporary permit for a period not to exceed one (1) week permitting parking at the times and places covered by this ordinance, provided, however, that no such permit shall become valid nor effective to excuse the holder thereof from compliance with the provisions of this ordinance unless the same shall have been approved in writing by the Superintendent of the Department of Streets and Highways.

SECTION 3. When any automobile or other vehicle is found parked in violation of this ordinance by any officer of the said City, the said officer may cause the same to be removed and for that purpose Council shall designate to the Police Department for the information of all city officials a list of approved automobile wrecking crews and convenient garages whose services may be engaged at the request of any officer of the City to remove such automobiles and other vehicles from the streets of the City when the same are found parked in violation of this ordinance, and Council shall, in designating such a list of garages, stipulate an approved schedule of charges to be made for the service rendered by such garages and garage owners which shall be charged against the owners of the said automobiles or other vehicles.

SECTION 4. It shall be the duty of every officer of the City of New Castle who shall have any knowledge of any automobile or other vehicle being parked contrary to the provisions of this ordinance to report the same immediately to the Police Department, and it shall be the duty of every police officer in this City, as soon as any violation of this ordinance is called to his attention or comes to his attention, to have the automobile or other vehicle which is parked in violation of this ordinance removed by an automobile wrecking crew, approved as heretofore provided, to a convenient garage at the cost and expense of the owner of the said automobile.

SECTION 5. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction by the Mayor or any alderman of the said City, be subject to the payment of a fine not exceeding One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars and the costs of prosecution and in default of payment of the said fine and costs, to imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed thirty (30) days, provided, however, that the Mayor or any alderman imposing any fine under the provisions of this ordinance may remit the whole or part of the said fine upon the payment to the City of New Castle, by the person so convicted, of the total cost and expense to the City of having the automobile or other vehicle of the person so convicted removed from the streets and properly stored, and the City of New Castle may cause the said automobile or other vehicle to be held by the said garage owner for the benefit of the said City until all of the said fine or costs have been paid, and the special remedies given to the said City by this ordinance shall not in any way abrogate or interfere with any other remedies which the said City now has by law for the enforcement of the said ordinance and the collection of any fine or cost imposed thereunder.

I, Cordelia Zeigler Jones, City Clerk, do hereby certify that the above and foregoing ordinance was passed by the Council of the City of New Castle, Pa., January 13th, 1928, signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk.

In witness whereof I herewith set my hand and affix the seal of said City this 23rd day of January, A. D. 1928.

Missionaries Tell Of Experiences In Foreign Lands

Inspirational Services Mark Opening Of Missionary Convention At Hoover Heights

Three inspirational an interesting services marked the opening of the missionary convention at the Hoover Height Tabernacle yesterday. Mr Koenigswald of the Kansu-Tibetan border spoke at the morning service. His message was of praise and thanksgivig to God for the marvelous way. He undertook for them while on that dangerous and war-torn district. He refered especially to the time when they had to vacate the stations because of the anti-foreign sentiment. Messages came from the British and American Consuls first warning of the danger and then ordering them from the country. There were 33 missionaries and 16 children to make the trip.

Three routes were open. They chose the one through the desert. While the trip was through bandit infested territory with many other dangers God very graciously went before them so that they came through without delay or damage. He related several instances that proved God's gracious leading and preparation.

Miss A. Allen of Ecuador spoke at the afternoon meeting. She gave a brief review of the conditions of the country and the opening and progress of missionary work there in the last 25 years. She told of the hardships and difficulties of the pioneering days and how God overruled so often.

Mr. Koenigswald spoke again last evening. He spoke especially of the religions of the Tibetans and how zealous they were in practice. He spoke of one home of a former priest who had renounced the priesthood but later sought forgiveness for that almost unpardonable sin and he saw where the floor of the home had been worn where the feet, knees and forehead had touched it in prostration before an idol in the corner. Their god consists of religion, Budah and the priesthood. Transmigration of the soul is strongly fixed in their beliefs.

Service this evening at 7:30. Miss Allen will again speak and Rev. Conley will bring a Bible message.

"Billy The Kid's" Home Regains Cattle Title

CARRIZOZO, N. M., Feb. 6—Lincoln county, which was for many years a center of the live-stock industry of the Southwest, is staging a comeback in the cattle business. Many noted old ranches, some embracing as much as 300,000 acres, have changed hands and are being stocked with high-grade or registered animals.

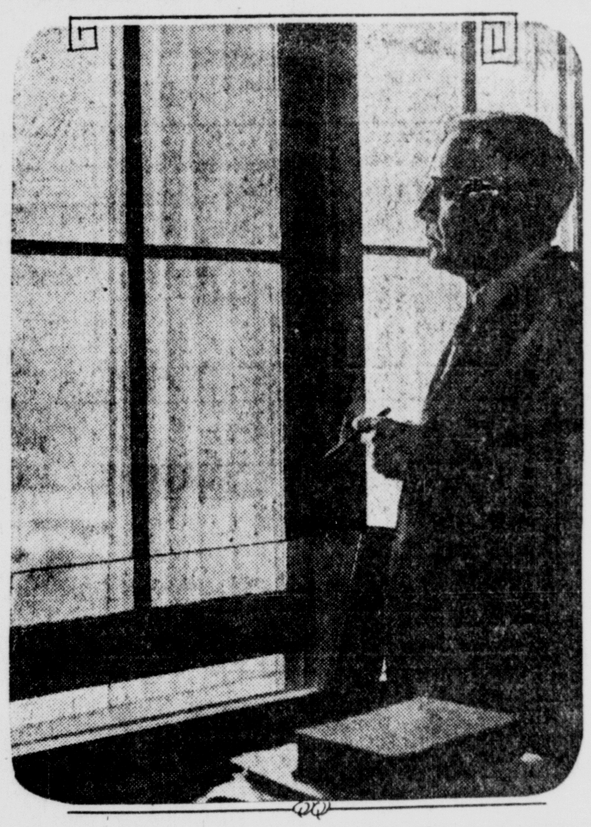

Lincoln county was a pioneer in the cattle business, the first great herds of the state, often numbering over 100,000 head, being ranged here during the Civil war. The industry in early days was largely confined to big companies and their conflicting range interests gave cause for many bitter range wars.

It was here that Billy the Kid rose to fame in range war activities, killing 16 men of the opposing faction in the Lincoln county war before he died with his boots on at the age of twenty-one. The factional fight in which he figured grew out of the killing of Robert Tunstall, for whom Billy the Kid was range foreman.

George Coe, a former partner and friend of Billy the Kid, still lives here and is one of Lincoln county's leading stockmen.

Roaming Round With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

He has a kind heart. One of these large sympathied chaps who doesn't always get as much credit as he is entitled to. Quiet, but ready to turn a hand for a friend or for any one in trouble.

But occasionally his intentions, splendid as they are, are mistaken, and in the instance about to be set down they were. He was driving down to his office.

A little lass was walking along the street and he apparently thought that she was lost. Little girls have an appeal for him, especially little ones about 7 years of age and he stopped his car.

"Can I give you a lift to where you want to go" he asked, "and are you lost".

Turning a look of the most withering scorn upon him the young lass replied, "no you dumbbell I'm on my way to school".

Had to get out this morning to meet the U. S. Army band which is in our midst. A fine looking bunch of soldiers and every one an artist on his own instrument.

There's one lad who looks familiar in that outfit and I'm wondering if he didn't used to be a bugler in the 108th Field Artillery. If he did he's going to have to play mighty sweet to make up for some of that bugling done in Camp Hancock, Ga., back in 1918.

Being the birthday of the colyum conductor seems to be a good day to have a band concert. Never mind the dirty crack.

Bill Chill is in bad shape these days, that is bad shape for Bill. He can hardly talk above a whisper which is tragedy for this songster. He was to have sung in the minstrel show the other evening, but his pipes went copasetie and he still has a voice that sounds something like a bass frog with the croup.

If it hadn't been so cold Sunday evening, one might have waxed romantic. The moon was as clear as an arc light, and headlights were not needed on the roads. Not a cloud in the sky it seemed, and the light of the moon simply flooded and drenched the earth. At midnight it was a beautiful sight.

One might have sung Moonlight and Roses only there would have been no roses. Seems almost a pity to waste so much moonlight on a cold night. After all its rather hard to get sentimental when your nose is cold and your hands are chilled and you need a robe to keep warm.

When a school boy will take his own time on Saturday afternoon to go through a newspaper plant you know he must be interested. Mr. Copson of the North Street Junior High school had half a dozen lads in the News plant Saturday afternoon and they were more than interested. The questions they asked were intelligent ones, and some of them nearly had the guide stumped.

Try and get up to hear the Army band tonight in the Cathedral. It's a real outfit and they have a congressman along to sing.

Words sometimes fail one, particularly when a presentation is made. And words seemed futile this morning when Quincy A. McBride came in and with a flourish of adverbs and a ruffle of nouns presented the colyum conductor with a derby. A Brown Derby if you please. One that seems to shriek 1896 or thereabouts. A derby that is almost a relic. Mr. McBride was most locquacious in his remarks and what he said is nobody's business. But the hat, customers, the hat, you should see it. If the Hard Hatters hold a banquet I'm going to wear the prize to it and that's a threat.

Chamberlin Denies Plane Total Wreck

Will Start Repairing Plane Wrecked At Richmond For New Endurance Test

(International News Service)

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 6.—Denying reports that his machine had been almost completely wrecked, Clarence D. Chamberlin said that, with a new tail and a new wing the Martine-Bellanca plane, which crashed at Richmond on the take-off, would be as good as new.

According to Chamberlin, who came here with his co-pilot, Roger Q. Williams, to arrange for repairs, the elevator controls of the heavily-laden monoplane were broken before the machine had risen, and this was the reason for the smash-up.

FARMER KILLED BY PROPELLOR OF AIRPLANE

Was Watching Take-Off Near Sharon After Forced Landing

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 6.—Stepping into a moving propeller of an airplane, Charles Phenicie, 54, a farmer, was instantly killed Sunday afternoon.

The plane, owned by the Weeks Aircraft Corp. of Milwaukee, had been forced to land on the Thomas Vernon farm near here Saturday night, due to a storm, and was preparing to resume the flight to Milwaukee when the accident occurred.

After an investigation, a verdict of accidental death was given by Coroner Willam McGrath.

The pilot of the plane, which left New York Saturday on an attempted non-stop flight to Milwaukee, was C. B. Chamberlain. Accompanying him were Elling O. Weeks, president, and Russell Laschke, assistant manager of the Weeks Corp.

Phenicie, one of a throng of curious attracted to the field by the presence of the plane, evidently did not see the propeller, which was moving slowly, it was said.

He lived on a farm near the scene of the accident.

Work Progresses On Remodelling Of P. O. Co. Building

Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric and railway offices today are located in their new offices and remodelling of the front of the Traction company building is under way. The front portion of the building is to be used for display purposes.

The rear portion of the first floor is occupied by the treasury department and where bills for electric current are paid. Superintendent of Power Louis Round and Superintendent of Transportation Coulthard have offices on the first floor.

The rear portion of the first floor is also occupied by employes of the transportation department and contains the office of the dispatchers. The meter department is located on the second floor as is the bookkeeping department.

When the building is entirely remodelled it will be one of the most up-to-date buildings in this section for purposes which it serves.

LONDON DESERTS ETON CROP

Women of London are deserting the Eton crop, the popular style of headdress since the early days of the bob. All the ultra phases of the style have gone, and the number of the more conservative conceptions are disappearing. The rumored reasor for the change—men are paying more attention to girls who have long tresses.
